"The University of St Andrews is an absolutely excellent institution to pursue your PhD study. Located in Scotland, St Andrews is surrounded by the North Sea, you can have the most scenic view for taking a breath after a well-concentrated time of PhD research. The University is led by world-leading academics and the most warm-hearted administrative team. You will interact with amazing students and colleagues coming from all over the world. Studying in St Andrews brought me to the fascinating world of International Relations and also nourished me to be a global citizen."

Ruoxi Wang

(CSC-St Andrews PhD student,
School of International Relations)
