Teaching and Assessing an Integrated Skills Discussion Task
In teaching discussion skills, numerous writers have emphasized the importance of classroom opportunities to improve speaking and listening skills (Brown, 2000; Ellis, 2005, in review; Hadley, 1993; Richards, 2003). Ferris (1998) noted the apprehension among 476 English language learners at three post-secondary institutions about answering oral questions and interacting in small groups.
Soonhyang (2006) surveyed East Asian graduate students who described small-group discussions as one of the most important activities in their course. Zengdong (2013) found that in questionnaires from Taiwanese and Mainland Chinese students, both perceived difficulties in speaking in academic situations.
This workshop describes the teaching and assessing of an integrated skills discussion task suitable for a pre-sessional EAP course.
1) Students choose high interest topics drawn from online newspapers; or their field of study and lead a discussion.

2) Through the task, students also learn how to take notes on their readings, employ an MLA/APA style in a short bibliography.

3) Assessment is of the student discussions and written work.
1.(a) RESEARCH

• More recent classroom-based research that even 10 hours of instruction improves Japanese students’ small group discussion skills (Robinson, Strong, Whittle & Nobe, 2001).

• Modeling and performance scales in instruction (Richards & Rogers, 2001; Brown, 2000; Willis, 1996).

• Repetition in language fluency and accuracy (Bygate, 1996; Bygate, 2001).
1. (b) The Discussion task combines four skills and has a (1) pre-task phase, (2) performance or during-task phase, and a (3) post-task phase (Willis & Willis, 2007).

Full description of the task (Strong, 2010).

Torch relay ends amid confusion

In San Francisco, the Olympic torch relay has ended amid confusion after the city abruptly changed the torch route.

The torch lighting ceremony was held as scheduled on Wednesday. Thousands of protesters -- Tibetans and civic group members -- had gathered to rally against China's crackdown in Tibet.

But the 1st torchbearer left the relay course soon after she began to run and disappeared into a nearby warehouse.

Nearly 1 hour later, the relay resumed on a different street with two torchbearers running.

Scuffles broke out between police and some demonstrators trying to reach the course. The relay proceeded under tight security with many police officers and police vehicles lining the route.

A closing ceremony, initially scheduled on the waterfront, was held at San Francisco International Airport. But the relay organizer failed to offer explanations to news organizations concerning these changes.

Vocabulary
Attacked – trying to harm someone or something
Graffiti – paint or writing on something that spoils its appearance
Advised – gave someone some advice or information
Violent – injurious or destructive force
Hatch – an opening that serves as a doorway or window in the floor or roof of a building.
Vocabulary:
Attacked: trying to harm someone or something
Graffiti: paint or writing on something that spoils its appearance
Advised: gave someone some advice or information
Violent: injurious or destructive force
Hatch: an opening that serves as a doorway or window in the floor or roof of a building.

Summary:
A 62 year old bus driver named David Newton was attacked after telling off youths about spray painting graffiti on the bus. While getting off the bus, a passenger informed Newton that there were youths in the back of the bus, spray cans and special marker pens, spraying graffiti. Newton caught the youths in the act and advised them that he was going to call the police. The three youths tried to escape from the bus, but another passenger stopped their escape, and the youths became violent. Then some of the youths escaped through the rear skylight hatch of the bus.
My opinion:
Graffiti is a big problem within Japan right now as it was discovered that a group of university students have “tagged” one of the world heritage buildings in Italy. I don’t understand why people would vandalize such famous buildings. Another recent case of vandalism in Japan is the case where a bullet train was vandalized and had the word ‘Hack’ spray painted on. It is believed that the artist sneaked in from the gap in the fence and had around 20-30 mins to graffiti. These people should be made to clean the graffiti, as a punishment, as well
Questions:
1. How do you feel about the rise in vandalism?
2. What do you think would be a fair punishment for the people who vandalized?
3. Why do you think young people vandalize objects?

Tips for Using Your Vocabulary Notebook:

1. Double space your vocabulary notebook. Make it as clear and easy to read as possible.
2. Use colour to make the new word leap off the page.
3. Always write an English definition, but also add a Japanese definition when you think you need it.
4. Always write your own sentence. It’s easier to remember.

Keep updating your vocabulary notebook throughout the semester, and remember this is not just a list of words. The aim is to increase your vocabulary, so keep looking back through your notebook and try to learn the words. Try and use your new words as often as possible in your discussions, in presentations, in your journal, your book reports and your essays for writing class.

– What is a definition of life? Is it reproduction and the ability to grow and evolve?

What is life? Where did it come from? These are probably the two most difficult questions in all of biology, and both are hotly debated.

The Biology 101 definition of "life" would include any self-replicating creature that can grow and evolve. But this is problematic because it excludes viruses and other obligate intracellular parasites that require a host to survive. And what about self-replicating pieces of DNA called transposons ("jumping genes"), or self-replicating proteins (e.g., prions, which can cause mad cow disease)? Do they qualify as life?

Even trickier than defining life is determining how it evolved in the first place. The early Earth was an inhospitable mix of inorganic compounds. In some way, life emerged, but how? The leading hypothesis is known as "RNA World," in which self-replicating RNA molecules served as the precursors of cellular life. But this idea, like all hypotheses of abiogenesis (and there are many such hypotheses), suffers from a lack of convincing evidence. In fact, bioinformatics...
