Teachers Together Conference
13-14 June 2019

What is Teachers Together?

The University of St Andrews has long recognised the importance of fostering partnerships between secondary schools and higher education institutions.

Teachers Together is a key event which brings together stakeholders from all sectors of education to help ensure that relevant, accurate and timely guidance is given to pupils preparing for university.

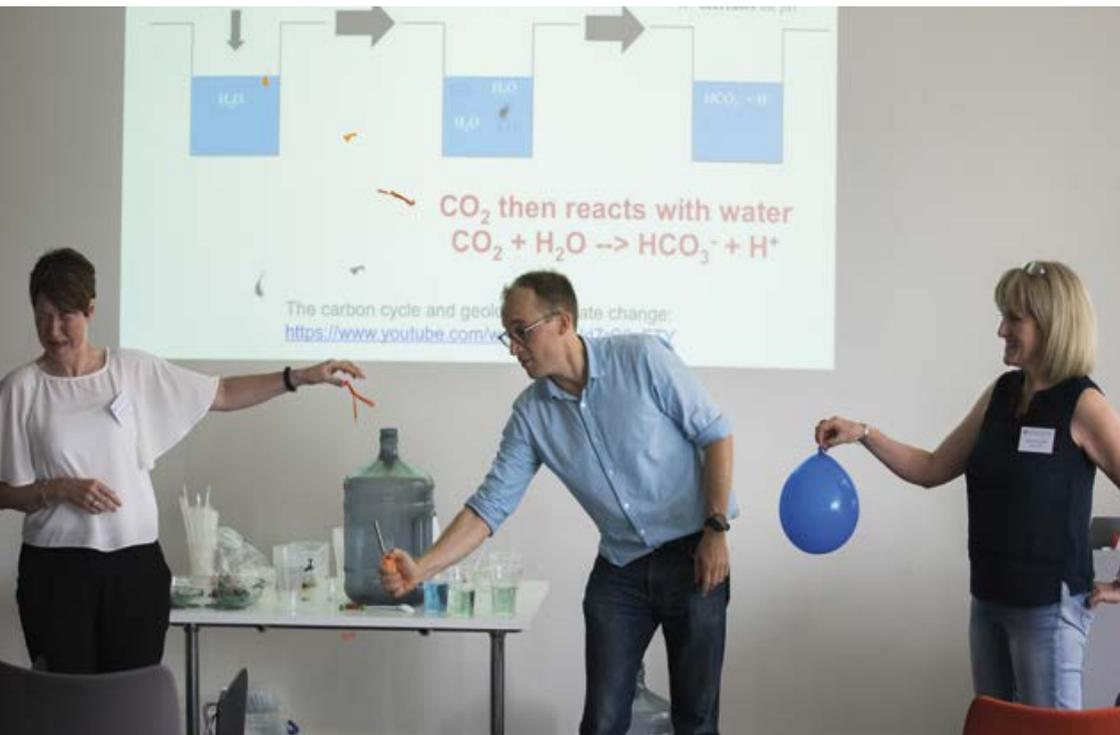

Primarily aimed at teachers and advisors in Scottish state schools, as well as our colleagues in further education colleges, the conferences provide an open and relaxed atmosphere in which we can share knowledge and best practice from across the education sector.

In previous years, our conferences have been centered on contemporary topics such as sustainability, the Curriculum for Excellence and Widening Access.

Teachers Together 2019 will focus on our Contextual Admissions process, the Faculty system at St Andrews as well as workshops on applying through UCAS and financial support available through SAAS and our scholarships.

We were extremely well looked after and the transparency of the conversations/sessions around admissions and issues with this were both useful and refreshing.

A very well organised conference and certainly worth time out of school. I was so impressed by the hard work, passion and enthusiasm of the students and staff who organised the events.
