          EN5202, EN5203, EN5301, EN5302, EN5303, EN5304,EN5401, EN5402, EN5501, EN5502, EN5511, EN5512
          20 credits: an approved 5000-level module within or outwith the School of English

In this programme, no more than 40 credits may be taken from the syllabus of any one named (i.e. specialist) M.Litt.

M.Litt.:  120 credits as for the Taught Element plus EN5099

M.Phil.:  120 credits as for the Taught Element, plus a thesis of not more than 40,000 words
English - Postgraduate 2012/13 - August 2012

This degree is designed to allow students maximum flexibility in designing their own M.Litt. programme from the full range of academic 5000-level modules offered by the School and beyond. (Note, however, that Creative Writing modules are not normally open to students on this or any academic M.Litt.) This programme is for those who do not wish to restrict themselves to a single area of English Studies, or for those who wish to develop expertise in two or more discrete areas of the discipline in preparation for further research.

Mediaeval English

Taught Element: 20 credits: EN5100
80 credits: EN5015, EN5017, EN5018
20 credits: EN5401 or EN5402 or another approved 5000-level module, within or outwith the School of English

M.Litt.: 120 credits as for the Taught Element, plus EN5099
M.Phil.: 120 credits as for the Taught Element, plus a thesis of not more than 40,000 words

This degree is designed to equip students with the linguistic skills and the literary, cultural and historical background necessary to undertake further study in any area of Mediaeval English literature, from its earliest beginnings in the Anglo-Saxon period to the close of the Middle Ages.

Modern and Contemporary Literature and Culture

Taught Element: 20 credits: EN5100
80 credits: EN5501, EN5502, EN5511, EN5522
20 credits: EN5401 or EN5402 or another approved 5000-level module, within or outwith the School of English

M.Litt.: 120 credits as for the Taught Element, plus EN5099
M.Phil.: 120 credits as for the Taught Element, plus a thesis of not more than 40,000 words

This degree builds on students' previous study of twentieth and twenty-first century literature and culture. Covering a range of topics and texts from the period, the programme aims to enhance students' textual knowledge and promote thinking about the interconnections between modern and contemporary literature and its historical cultural and theoretical context. Key topics include: politics and utopia, literature and tradition, modernism and the middle-brow, gender and modernism, postmodernism, poststructuralism, ecocriticism, film theory, literature and technology. Writers covered will include: Virginia Woolf, D.H. Lawrence, Elizabeth Bowen, Samuel Beckett, Stevie Smith, David Mitchell, Don Delillo.

Romantic/Victorian Studies (available from 2013-14, although EN5202 will run as an individual module option in 2012-13)

Taught Element: 20 credits: EN5100
80 credits: EN5201, EN5202 and EN5203
20 credits: EN5401 or EN5402 or another approved 5000 level module, within or outwith the School of English

M.Litt.: 120 credits as for the Taught Element, plus EN5099
M.Phil.: 120 credits as for the Taught Element, plus a thesis of not more than 40,000 words

This degree is designed to promote a detailed exploration of Romantic and Victorian literature and criticism and to equip students with the literary, cultural and historical background necessary to undertake further study in literature from the mid eighteenth to the late nineteenth century.
Shakespeare and Renaissance Literary Culture

Taught Element: 20 credits: EN5100

Minimum of 60 credits from: EN5301, EN5302, EN5303, EN5304;

Maximum of 40 credits from: EN5401, EN5402, and other approved 5000-level modules within and outwith the School of English (a maximum of 20 credits may be taken outwith the School)

M.Litt.: 120 credits as for the Taught Element, plus EN5099

M.Phil.: 120 credits as for the Taught Element, plus a thesis of not more than 40,000 words

This degree is designed to develop critical skills through the investigation of Shakespeare's works in different cultural contexts.

Women, Writing and Gender

Taught Element: 20 credits: EN5100

80 credits: EN5112, EN5115 and EN5116

20 credits: EN5401 or EN5402 or another approved 5000-level module, within or outwith the School of English

M.Litt.: 120 credits as for the Taught Element, plus EN5099

M.Phil.: 120 credits as for the Taught Element, plus a thesis of not more than 40,000 words

This degree will introduce students to key issues in the discussion of gender, through the detailed exploration of theoretical, critical and creative writing from the Renaissance to the contemporary period.

A grounding in Old English grammar and translation from Old English will be acquired with the help of grammar exercises and translation practice on original Old English texts. It is recognised that students may join this module with widely varying levels of experience of Old English, from none to fairly extensive. The aim is to get all students to an acceptable level of proficiency in reading and translation, and this is reflected in the assessment of this module by two translation exercises. Time and students’ linguistic expertise permitting, some literary contextualisation of the texts studied and translated may also be included. An electronic component (WebCT, databases, internet tools) will assist students in their acquisition of the necessary knowledge of Old English grammar, vocabulary and syntax.

This module explores Victorian literature, culture, ideology and aesthetic theory from the 1830s to 1900. Students examine the various conceptions and dimensions of British literature and culture, and Victorian criticism and theory, up to the present. In particular, this module looks at the way in which Victorian literature engages with debates about gender, in terms of conceptions of masculinity and femininity; considers the critical pleasures of satire, nonsense and parody; and explores aestheticism; colonial power; Victorian Gothic; and romantic love.

This module will focus on the privileging of northern British ‘sublime’ landscapes and their associated cultures. In terms of literary history it will take a panoramic view of the Romantic and post-Romantic imagination from the mid-eighteenth century to the late Victorian period. At its heart will lie texts about Scotland or by Scottish writers, e.g. accounts of their Scottish tours by Dorothy and William Wordsworth, as well as poetry and prose by, for example, James Macpherson, Robert Burns, Sir Walter Scott, James Hogg, John Galt, Arthur Hugh Clough and Robert Louis Stevenson.

Planned timetable: To be arranged.

English literature did not develop in isolation, but in response to continental writing. This module will investigate the relationship between the literature of the English Renaissance and the European vernaculars of the period. It will examine continental texts, their early modern English translations, and English work influenced by them. Possible topics for discussion include: Petrarch’s sonnets and their English imitators and adaptors; Ariosto’s Orlando Furioso and Spenser’s Faerie Queene; the political writing of Machiavelli; and Castiglione’s Libro del Cortegiano and its influence. All texts will be taught in English.

Programme module type: Compulsory for Shakespeare and Renaissance Literary Culture Postgraduate Taught Programme
Optional for students of any other M.Litt. Postgraduate Taught Programmes.

Learning and teaching methods and delivery: 1 seminar.

Assessment pattern: Coursework = 100%

Planned timetable: To be arranged.

This module aims to build upon the themes explored in EN5304, 'Learned Culture'. Here, the emphasis is less upon rhetoric and classroom practice in the sixteenth century, and more upon Renaissance literature's engagement with a wider field of influences and practice, explored as aspects of 'the popular’ in its widest sense. Themes for discussion may include: the place of the stage; popular festivity and literary form; ballads and print; jests and alehouses; the impact of the Reformation. Texts to be discussed may include: Shakespeare’s Pericles, The Winter’s Tale and Hamlet.

The module provides an introduction to key debates in contemporary feminist and gender theory, alongside an overview of the historical and cultural context within which these theories have developed. By drawing on the teaching resources available within the school, the module will be able to cover a considerable range of writers and their ideas, and students might expect to encounter the work of writers as diverse as Mary Wollstonecraft and Judith Butler. However, the emphasis will be upon the course as a point of departure, and the seminars will be accompanied by an extensive reading list through which the students will be encouraged to explore those areas of enquiry that most interest them.

Programme module type: Compulsory for Women, Writing and Gender Postgraduate Taught Programme Optional for students of the M.Litt. in English Studies and the M.Litt. in Shakespeare and Renaissance Literary Culture Postgraduate Taught Programmes

Planned timetable: To be arranged.

The module seeks to introduce students to a range of debates concerning women, writing and gender, 1500 - 1800. The set texts embrace a variety of generic forms, and reflect upon such questions as the 'problem' of woman's voice, the interpretation of Genesis and the staging of the female body. Also central to many of the works is a concern with the role of woman in marriage and civic society, the importance of education, and the tension between domestic ideology and female desire. Central to these works is a concern with constructions of femininity and masculinity and in conjunction with EN5112, the module will also examine current critical debates surrounding the cultural configuration of gender.

Programme module type: Compulsory for Women, Writing and Gender Postgraduate Taught Programme Optional for students of any other M.Litt. Postgraduate Taught Programmes.

Learning and teaching methods and delivery: 1 seminar.

Planned timetable: To be arranged.

This module continues the chronological survey of debates surrounding women, writing and gender begun by EN5115. The module examines continuity and change in constructions of gender across the period 1800 - 2000, beginning with the ongoing significance of the fallen woman and the problem of female desire. Students will be introduced to key critical readings of nineteenth-century women's writing before moving on to consider the emergence of the 'new woman' at the fin de siècle. In the twentieth century the module will consider the impact of the First World War on women's writing, and the work of modernist writers will be examined alongside 'middlebrow' and popular fictions. Finally students will examine a range of contemporary writers whose rewriting of history and myth engages with current debates in gender theory.

Programme module type: Compulsory for Women, Writing and Gender Postgraduate Taught Programme Optional for students of any other M.Litt. Postgraduate Taught Programmes.

Pre-requisite(s): EN5115

Learning and teaching methods and delivery: 1 seminar.

Assessment pattern: Coursework = 100%

Students will explore a specific area of English literature chosen in consultation with the most relevant member(s) of staff, subject to availability. Teaching/supervision is normally via 6 tutorials which may be individual or arranged in groups, depending on numbers. Some special topics may make use of relevant individual seminars on extant modules in place of one or more tutorials. Syllabus and reading will be finalised in consultation with the member(s) of staff. This module operates as a directed reading programme which allows all students to explore topics of their choice in greater depth than is possible in predetermined taught modules. Students who hope to go on to doctoral work may wish to use the Special Topic to conduct a pilot study in their proposed area of doctoral studies.
