This module will explore the most pressing questions which arise when different texts are put in contact, using pairings of texts to reflect on different kinds of relations, such as clashes, genetic, interdisciplinary and intermedial relations. Students are expected to find further texts to "prolong" the comparison in a meaningful way, drawing on their respective expertise in different languages, thus developing an in-depth understanding of methods and theoretical frameworks in Comparative Literature. The module will be based on three disciplines (including but not limited to Arabic, French, German, Italian, Russian, Spanish). Translations of the core texts discussed in class will be available.

Programme module type: Compulsory for Comparative Literature and German and Comparative Literature Postgraduate Programmes. Optional for Crossways in Cultural Narratives Mundus Postgraduate Programmes.

Learning and teaching methods and delivery: Weekly contact: 2 hours (lectures and seminars)

Assessment pattern: Coursework = 100%

This module seeks to enable postgraduates actively to acquire advanced knowledge of contexts that have shaped literature and culture in the German-speaking lands from the Middle Ages to the present day. It draws on the expertise of academic teachers in the Department of German, and concentrates on the research-led study of selected turning points in the cultural, literary or intellectual history of the German-speaking lands. The turning points studied will vary but may include: Early Modern print culture, the making of German letters, the ‘Sattelzeit’ around 1800, urban modernisms around 1900, the Weimar Republic, Stunde Null and the radical contemporary.

The module provides students with a comprehensive knowledge of important elements of classical and modern Arabic and Persian literatures and cultures from pre-Islamic times to the present. Students will be exposed to a greater variety of literary texts than at undergraduate level and some of these key texts will be explored in detail. Students will be expected to read some key texts in Arabic or Persian depending on their language choice.

Programme module type: Optional for Comparative Literature, Cultural Identity Studies, German and Comparative Literature and Crossways in Cultural Narratives Mundus. Postgraduate Programmes. Optional for other MLitt students outside Modern Languages with permission of both Schools.

Pre-requisite(s): First degree in Arabic or Persian or similar knowledge of Arabic or Persian [classical and/or modern standard Arabic or Persian].

The module seeks to introduce students to a range of debates concerning women, writing and gender through history. The set texts embrace a variety of generic forms, and reflect upon such questions as the ‘problem’ of woman’s voice. Central to many of the works are such concerns as the role of woman in marriage and civic society, the importance of education, and the tension between domestic ideology and female desire. Central to these works is a concern with constructions of femininity and masculinity and in conjunction with EN5112, the module will also examine current critical debates surrounding the cultural configuration of gender.

Planned timetable: To be arranged

This module continues the chronological survey of debates surrounding women, writing and gender begun by EN5115. The module examines continuity and change in constructions of gender across the period 1800 to the present. Students will be introduced to key critical readings of nineteenth-century women's writing before moving on to consider the emergence of the 'new woman' at the fin de siècle. In the twentieth century the module will consider the work of modernist writers alongside 'middlebrow' and popular fictions. Finally students will examine a range of contemporary writers whose rewriting of history and myth engages with current debates in gender theory.

English literature did not develop in isolation, but in response to continental writing. This module will investigate the relationship between the literature of the English Renaissance and the European vernaculars of the period. It will examine continental texts, their early modern English translations, and English work influenced by them. Possible topics for discussion include: Petrarch’s sonnets and their English imitators and adaptors; Ariosto's Orlando Furioso; the political writing of Machiavelli; and Castiglione's Libro del Cortegiano and its influence. All texts will be taught in English.

This module aims to build upon the themes explored in EN5304, 'Learned Culture'. Here, the emphasis is less upon rhetoric and classroom practice in the sixteenth century, and more upon Renaissance literature's engagement with a wider field of influences and practice, explored as aspects of 'the popular' in its widest sense. Themes for discussion may include: the place of the stage; popular festivity and literary form; ballads and print; jests and alehouses; the impact of the Reformation. Texts to be discussed may include: Shakespeare's The Winter's Tale; law and popular culture; the poetry of Robert Herrick.

Modernism, in its narrowest sense, refers to the radical literary experiments that occurred in English poetry and prose in the aftermath of the First World War by writers such as T.S. Eliot, James Joyce and Virginia Woolf. This module will explore those experiments in the context of the wider movements in culture and society that informed literary modernism in the first decades of the twentieth century.

In tandem with the theoretical and philosophical perspectives studied on EN5511, this module introduces students to a range of late twentieth and early twenty-first century writing. Focalised through both national and international perspectives, this module provides the opportunity to reflect on the proliferation of diverse literatures and other forms of cultural production in the contemporary world. The course is designed to expose students to a range of contemporary authors, poets and playwrights, moving between a detailed focus on highlighted key works and a wider a perspective on individual writer’s oeuvres. Topics and themes may include: ecocriticism, postmodernism, terrorism, genre, magical realism, experimental writing, sexualities, globalisation and postcolonialism.

Italians: who are they and how is that decided? A young country with a long history, the problem of Italian identity predates the formation of the Italian State and remains unresolved in the twenty-first century. This module investigates the issue through seminal works by Italian writers from the thirteenth century to the present day. The idea of Italy and Italians has been largely located in literature and culture, the study of which is fundamental for any understanding of the reality of Italy, and forms an exemplary case study in the often contested construction of a national identity.

ML5001 Literary and Cultural Theory (1)

SCOTCAT Credits: 20
SCQF Level: 11
Semester: 1
Planned timetable: To be arranged.

This module and its partner module ML5002 seek to provide the kind of research training now regarded as indispensable for all postgraduates by exploring a range of literary and cultural theories through which texts of all sorts may be conceptualised, criticised and analysed. We will study a broad chronological and national range of seminal thinkers and theories, which might typically include: Aristotle; Kant; Marxist theory; psychoanalytic theory; Benjamin; Adorno; structuralism, deconstruction and poststructuralism; feminist and queer theory; Fanon, Spivak and Bhabha; the posthuman.

RU5013 Generations in Russian Literature and Culture (20)

SCOTCAT Credits: 20
SCQF Level: 11
Semester: 1
Planned timetable: To be arranged.

Generations in Russian Literature and Culture: Metaphors of kinship have proven remarkably robust in the history of pre-revolutionary Russia and the Soviet and post-Soviet states, providing means for writers to conceptualise their relationship with their literary predecessors (father/son, uncle/nephew, for example), to imagine the nation in either epic (fatherland) or lyrical (motherland) terms, and, in the Soviet period, for the political authorities to develop discourses of (filial) loyalty and betrayal. This module investigates issues in Russian culture and history through the lens of genealogy, drawing on the expertise of researchers in the Department of Russian in order to broaden and deepen students’ understanding of the Russian experience from the nineteenth century to the modern day.

The module is a high-level introduction to research areas of Hispanic literature and film. The approach is through “national themes”, which may vary from year to year, traceable within Spanish and Spanish American culture. One such theme is the journey, a subject associated with some of the greatest texts in Spanish, such as Poema de Mio Cid, a story of reconquest and honour retrieval set at the start of Spain and the Castilian language; Don Quijote, a journey of self-realisation in the face of modernity; or Pedro Páramo, a pilgrimage to the personal roots of the protagonist as well as of Mexico. This module is a 20-credit version of SP5011.
