This module, together with PY5102 Current Issues II in semester 2, covers recent work in four central areas of philosophy, each of them in a section of 11 hours. The four areas are Epistemology, Ethics, Philosophy of Language and Philosophy of Mind. Epistemology and Ethics will be covered in PY5101, Philosophy of Language and Philosophy Mind will be covered in PY5102. The Epistemology section will include topics from among the following: definition of knowledge; tracking and reliability conditions for knowledge; modal requirements on knowledge (safety and sensitivity); scepticism, contextualism and closure; peer-disagreement. The Ethics section will include topics from among the following: the relation between morality, human nature and the diversity of human practices and societies; what the concept of rights adds to a morality of duties, goals and reasons; double effect and the moral significance of intention; questions in meta-ethics about the supervenience of the normative on non-normative facts.

The Research Methods module is a core module for all students taking the Graduate Diploma or MLitt programme. The module aims to foster the range of skills required for independent research in philosophy. These skills run from the most concretely practical, such as knowledge of the main research resources and how to access them, to the most abstract, such as the ability to uncover the background and context of a specific issue (how it originated, what framework is presumed in a particular author’s treatment of it, what other ways of thinking of the issue might be available, what literature is relevant to it, and so forth) in a way that allows one to develop an independent conception of how the issue is best addressed. While these are general skills that will be important in your work in any branch of philosophy, they can be developed only in application to some substantive philosophical position or issues. For that reason, the module is run as a book seminar; weekly meetings will involve discussion introduced by student presentations on issues drawn from or connected with the chosen book.

Module teaching staff:
MPL: K Hurtig (Stirling) History: Dr. A Douglas (St Andrews) EML: G Melis (Stirling) LM: C Johnston (Stirling)

Student dissertations will be supervised by members of the teaching staff who will advise on the choice of subject and provide guidance throughout the research process. The completed dissertation of not more than 15,000 words must be submitted by mid-August.

Learning and teaching methods of delivery: Weekly contact: Individual supervision.
Assessment pattern: Coursework (Dissertation) = 100%
Re-assessment pattern: No Re-Assessment Available

This module will focus on Kant’s critical philosophy. The primary text will be one of his three Critiques, and it may include consideration of themes in Kant’s political philosophy, philosophy of religion or philosophy of history. The Cambridge translations are recommended.

The object of this module is to provide an introduction to central themes in the work of some of the founding figures of the analytic tradition in the late nineteenth and early twentieth century. The primary focus of the module will be on developments in logic and its philosophy initiated in Frege’s work and continued in Cambridge by Russell, the early Wittgenstein, and Ramsey.

In this module a classic text from the history of philosophy will be studied in detail. The goal will be to situate the text in its historical context, to understand it in its relation to other important works by the same author, and to consider the significance of objections to the text made by the author’s contemporaries and by more recent political philosophers. Examples of texts that might be studied include, but are not limited to: Plato’s Republic; Aristotle’s Politics; Augustine’s City of God; Hobbes’s Leviathan; Locke’s Two Treatises of Government; Rousseau’s Social Contract; The Federalist Papers; Burke’s Reflections on the Revolution in France; Kant’s Doctrine of Right; Hegel’s Philosophy of Right; Mill’s On Liberty. The module will concentrate on identifying the author’s intentions in the text in question, but not to the exclusion of the determining what resources the text offers to political philosophy today.

Learning and teaching methods of delivery: Weekly contact: 2-hour seminar (x 11 weeks)

Assessment pattern: Coursework = 100%

Re-assessment pattern: New Coursework (5,000-word essay) = 100%

This module will examine the work of one of history’s great philosopher’s, Ludwig Wittgenstein. Wittgenstein’s two main texts, Tractatus Logico-Philosophicus and Philosophical Investigations will both be studied, focusing in both cases on Wittgenstein’s conceptions of language, thought and reality. The module will involve, of course, questions of exegesis, but also questions of philosophical truth: Wittgenstein will be assumed throughout to be a valuable resource for our own philosophizing, and not merely a figure of historical interest.
