School of History
(see also Ancient History)

B.Sc./M.A. Honours
The general requirements are 480 credits over a period of normally 4 years (and not more than 5 years) or part-time equivalent; the final two years being an approved honours programme of 240 credits, of which 90 credits are at 4000 level and at least a further 120 credits at 3000 and/or 4000 (H) levels. Refer to the appropriate Faculty regulations for lists of subjects recognised as qualifying towards either a B.Sc. or M.A. degree.

B.Sc./M.A. Honours with Integrated Year Abroad
The general requirements are 540 credits over a period of normally 5 years (and not more than 6 years) or part-time equivalent; the final three years being an approved honours programme of 300 credits, of which 60 credits are gained during the integrated year abroad, 90 credits are at 4000 level and at least a further 120 credits at 3000 and/or 4000 (H) levels. Refer to the appropriate Faculty regulations for lists of subjects recognised as qualifying towards either a B.Sc. or M.A. degree.

Other Information: In the case of students who spend part of the Honours Programme abroad on a recognised Exchange Scheme, the Programme Requirements will be amended to take into account courses taken while abroad.

The Honours syllabus is undergoing a major change commencing in 2002-03 and Programme requirements listed below are those for students entering the first year of the Honours Programme in 2002-03 or subsequently.

Students entering the Second Year of the Honours programme in 2002-03 should refer to School Handbooks and consult Honours Advisers for the requirements of their honours programme.

AR3211  The Koran
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Prerequisite: Open to any student in the third or subsequent year of study, subject to the permission of the Head of School
Description: The module introduces students to the text of the Koran in translation and to the field of modern Koranic studies. It addresses the problems of the Koran’s historical provenance by considering its content, the traditional biography of the Prophet Muhammad, and the critical discussions of modern scholarship. It examines the Koranic definition of Islam and the relationship it asserts between Islam and earlier versions of Middle Eastern monotheism. It also examines the legislative content of the Koran, especially social legislation concerning the family and the status of women in society. The module does not require a knowledge of Arabic.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two seminars.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

AR3222  Mediaeval Arabic Prose Literature
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Prerequisite: AR2002
Description: This module, taught in English and Arabic, is designed to give students taking an Arabic degree a general grounding in classical Arabic/Islamic culture and to enable them to recognise continuities with modern culture. It starts by discussing the formative period of Islamic culture, then studies selected Arabic stories which show typical ways in which mediaeval writers thought about religion, individuals and society. Topics treated in the selection include women, sex and society, and Muslim views of Islamic history.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two hours and one seminar/tutorial.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

AR3234  Modern Arabic Literature : Introduction to the Short Story
Credits: 15.0  Semester: 1
Prerequisite: AR2002
Description: This module will include discussion in English of the literary/historical background of modern Arabic fiction and an introduction to the modern Arabic short story, with readings in Arabic from stories written between the 1920s and 1970s. Its aim will be to combine the development of literary translation skills with close textual analysis and some broader cultural and literary discussion.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two hours.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 2 Hour Examination = 60%

AR3236  The Postcolonial Arabic Novel in Translation
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Prerequisite: Open to any student in the third or subsequent year of study, subject to the permission of the Head of School.
Description: This module will start with an overview of the historical background and a brief survey of the development of postcolonial Arabic fiction. For the rest of the module students will follow a programme of supervised reading in English of important examples of modern Arabic fiction such as novels by Naguib Mahfouz, Elias Khoury and Hanan al-Shaykh.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two hours.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%
AR4204 Advanced Translation
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1
Prerequisites: AR3205, AR3222 and AR3234
Anti-requisite: AR3204
Description: This module develops written translation skills over a broader linguistic range than that of AR3205. Students will study ways of translating from Arabic into English using texts of a variety of periods, genres and registers relevant to the understanding of contemporary issues and culture. They will also learn how to translate different kinds of modern and contemporary English texts into Modern Standard Arabic.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Three hours.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

AR4223 Typology, Theme and Narrative in Mediaeval Islamic Historiography
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Anti-requisite: AR3223
Description: This module is taught in English using translations of mediaeval Arabic texts. It begins with an overview of historical background and reference works, and a general introduction to the themes and sources studied in the course. This is followed by case studies in family history and historical legend, a discussion of the treatment of character and motivation in a longer historical narrative, and a comparison of a poem on an historical event and historical accounts of the same event. The texts studied date from the ninth and tenth centuries A.D and deal with the period from early Islam to the tenth century A.D.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two hours, divided between lectures/reading classes and seminars.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

AR4224 Religious Thought
Credits: 30.0 Semester: Either
Prerequisites: AR3205, AR3234, AR3222
Description: This module is taught in Arabic and English. It begins with readings from the Hadith, the reports of sayings and doings attributed to the Prophet which are considered "second only to the Quran in holiness", and looks at the importance of Tradition in classical and contemporary Islam. The second part of the module looks at radical Islam, and centres on readings from Sayyid Qutb (d 1966), al-'Adala al-Ijtima'iyya fi al-Islam ("Social Justice in Islam").
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two lectures and one seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

History - Honours

ME3012 Heroic History: The Age of Beowulf

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2002-03

Description: This module uses the epic poem Beowulf to explore early Anglo-Saxon society. Major themes include: the poem’s date and context; kings and queens; weapons and warfare; family and feuding; heroic masculinity; history, poetry and memory; the impact of Christianity; orality and literacy. The course will make extensive use of modern translations of Old English poetry Latin histories and other early mediaeval epics. It will rely heavily on the wide range of electronic resources in this field to study both the text of the poem itself and the material culture of early Anglo-Saxon England.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

ME3013 Kings, High-kings and Vikings: power and politics in Ireland, c.550 - 1150

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2002-03

Description: This module investigates the political development of Ireland in the pre-Norman period. From the segmentary predation of the sixth- and seventh-century tribal society we trace the attempts of the kings of Tara to create a national kingship in the ninth and tenth centuries before encountering the eventual success of provincial kingship in the eleventh and twelfth centuries. Essential to understanding this political development are the contrasting influences of the great monastic federations (which dominated society from the later seventh to the early tenth centuries) and of the Vikings, first as raiders and then as neighbours.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.

Description:
The area to be studied in this module is one with an unparalleled wealth of archaeological evidence from great Roman cities like Palmyra, through the villages and small towns of late antiquity to the planned towns and desert palaces of the early Islamic period. This wealth of archaeological evidence, combined with literary sources of variable quality, enable us to reconstruct social and economic trends in late Antiquity and early Islam more fully than we can anywhere else in the Mediterranean basin. In addition to the interest of the archaeological evidence itself, the course will also examine the use of archaeology to throw light on social and economic change in society.

ME3220  War Lords and Holy Men

Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1
Availability: 2002-03

Description: This module explores two momentous themes in European history: (i) the disintegration of the Roman empire and the emergence of 'barbarian' successor kingdoms and (ii) the Christianisation of Europe. It will take as its main focus the kingdom of the Franks, and use this as a basis for comparison and contrast with other early mediaeval kingdoms, both Anglo-Saxon and continental. After introductory lectures, some well-documented case-studies of clashes between rulers and religious figures will be studied in detail to examine themes such as: the end of Roman rule and the establishment of successor kingdoms in Britain, Gaul and Italy; the nature of early mediaeval kingship; early mediaeval ideas of Christian holiness; monasticism and mission; saints and miracles; the uses of wealth. Seminars will take as their focus some of the many primary sources for this period that are available in paperback translation.

ME3222  Inca Civilisation and its Destruction

Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Availability: 2002-03

Description: The Inca Empire (Tahuantinsuyu) dominated the Andean region for about a century before the Spanish Conquest. Its creation and consolidation were the achievement of three great rulers (Incas) who held sway in the Andes from the 1430s to the 1520s: Pachacutec, Topa, and Huayna Capac. The aim of this module is to study the society, religion, art, and political and military organisation of this empire, partly through the post-Conquest written sources, and partly through the architecture and artefacts left by the conquered indigenous population. It also asks how Pizarro, with less than 200 conquistadors, succeeded in 1532 in conquering an empire of some eight million people, and what happened to the native population in the aftermath of conquest.

ME4808  The Hohenstaufen: an Imperial Dynasty in Mediaeval Europe

Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: 2002-03 Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: The Hohenstaufen family obtained the throne of Germany in 1138 and was bloodily annihilated in 1268. In the intervening period members of the dynasty had ruled over Germany, Italy and Sicily, led successive crusades, engaged in prolonged and destructive conflict with the papacy and presided over a court culture of complexity and brilliance. The first semester’s work will concentrate on the political history of the dynasty, with special emphasis on the emperors Frederick Barbarossa (d.1190) and Frederick II (d.1250). In the second semester we will adopt a thematic approach, looking at selected aspects of the culture and society of the realms ruled by the Hohenstaufen. Themes will include the structure and culture of the aristocracy, the urban milieu, religious and political ideology and the patronage of art, architecture and scholarship.
Class Hour: 9.30 am - 12.30 pm Wednesday.
Teaching: Two one-and-a-half hour seminars.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, Two 3 Hour Examinations = 60%
ME4809 History, Hagiography and Politics in the Sixth Century: The World of Gregory of Tours

Credits: 60.0 Semester: Whole Year
Availability: 2002-03 Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: Gregory, bishop of Tours (573-594) came from a provincial Roman aristocratic family but lived through the reigns of some of the most colourful and powerful barbarian rulers of the early Middle Ages. He chronicled the deeds of saints and kings in his copious and engaging writings, all of which are available in English translation. On the basis of his works, Gregory has been characterised as typical of the late antique world and as representative of ‘barbarian’ Europe of the early middle Ages. Through a study of Gregory’s writings and their cultural and political context, this module explores the transition from the ancient world to the middle Ages.

Class Hour: 9.30 am - 12.30 pm Wednesday.
Teaching: Two one-and-a-half hour seminars.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, Two 3 Hour Examination = 60%

ME4904 England and France at War in the Fourteenth Century

Credits: 60.0 Semester: Whole Year
Availability: 2002-03 Available only to students in the second year of Honours Programme
Anti-requisite: ME3405
Description: The traditional dates of the Hundred Years War are 1337-1453. It was from the 1290s, however, that tensions began to build between England and France in the regions (such as Gascony, Scotland and the Low Countries) which were to play the crucial role in the outbreak of war in 1337, and it was during the first two decades of the fourteenth century - at Courtrai in 1302, for example, and at Bannockburn in 1314 - that the new military tactics which were to prove so effective after 1337 were developed. The initial aim of this module is to study the diplomatic and military history of England, France and their allies both in the build-up to full-scale war and during the first two phases (1337-96) of what is known as the Hundred Years War. It also looks in detail at areas such as military organisation, the chivalric ethos, the laws and customs of war in relation to things such as sieges or the treatment of prisoners of war, the economic and social impact of war, and the literature of war. A substantial part of the course will be devoted to in-depth study of contemporary chronicles of the war, particularly the chronicles of Jean Froissart.

Class Hour: 9.30 am - 12.30 pm Wednesday.
Teaching: One 3 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3001 British History 1485-1603
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Description: This module, which will operate as a seminar, will mainly concentrate on late fifteenth- and sixteenth-century English history, but will also attempt to set England into a “British” context by considering developments in Wales, the borderlands, Ireland and Scotland. The emphasis will be on politics and the Reformation: personalities, political and religious structures, and ideas. This is a survey course: the essence is to appreciate the concept of change over time; to examine, for instance, what differences existed between the political and religious regimes and cultures of (for example) the 1490s, 1530s, 1550s and 1590s; to chart the development of monarchy, society, the powers of governments, political thought, and religious attitudes over a long century.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3008 The Habsburgs and Germany in the Sixteenth Century: Maximilian I to Rudolf II, 1477-1612
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Description: By the beginning of the sixteenth century the Holy Roman Empire was decidedly German in character and wholly identified with the Habsburg dynasty. The course examines the turbulent relationship between the Habsburg rulers and the German nation, concentrating on the attempts to create a unified state out of a fragmented confederation of principalities and city states. Themes to be considered include problems, conflicts of jurisdiction and confessionalisation.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3011 Society and Religious Change in Sixteenth-Century France
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1
Availability: Contact School
Anti-requisite: MO4902
Description: This module examines how France faced the two major challenges of the age: the trend towards more centralised state-building, stimulated in part by the changing nature of warfare in the sixteenth century and the urge on the part of European monarchies to create a new monarchy; and the challenge posed by the divisions of European Christendom resulting from the Protestant Reformation. A central question to be answered is why France succeeded in meeting the first challenge so successfully, as epitomised by the ‘Renaissance’ monarchy of Francis I, but then collapsed so weakly in the face of the growth of Calvinism in the second half of the century.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3012 The Medici, Savonarola and Machiavelli: Florence 1434-1527
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1
Description: This module focuses on the periods of Medici rule from Cosimo’s seizure of power to the Sack of Rome. Seminars will concentrate on how power, religion and intellectual activity were expressed in the visual and written cultures of a Renaissance state. Students will examine Medicean art of statecraft, family rivalries, patronage and opposition to oligarchical rule.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%
MO3015  The Mental World of the Individual and the Collective in England, 1550-1800
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: Men, women and children in pre-industrial England lived in a very different world from their twentieth-century counterparts. Life was insecure, painful and short; understanding of man and nature was rudimentary; belief systems were very different. The material and intellectual environment produced distinctive and fascinating attitudes. By examining the way people thought and acted about (for example) death, being young or old, magic, and crime; about the material and the spiritual context; about themselves and about those around them - we can recreate the changing mental world of the English as individuals and as a society.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3016  State-building and Social Change in Sixteenth-Century Europe
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: This module examines some of the crucial events and underlying structural changes in society during a transitional era in European society. Traditionally the sixteenth century has been seen as a time when European society emerged from the Mediaeval era to something recognizably pre-Modern. This module will examine these ‘modern’ elements - the emergence of new nation states, the growth of a mass information technology with the spread of literacy and printing, and the engagement with non-European societies - with a skeptical eye. It will examine how far these structural developments actually impacted on the lives of Europe’s peoples; and whether, indeed, patterns of thought and living were recognizably different from those of the Late Middle Ages. Topics to be considered will include the history of food, medicine and transport. A second special feature will be a consideration of life in Europe beyond the Atlantic and Mediterranean nations which dominate most textbooks of the period.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3018  Death and the Dead in Late Mediaeval and Early Modern Europe, c.1350-1650
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: This module examines the universal experience of death in late-mediaeval and early-modern Europe. It begins with the principal causes of death and then considers how people prepared to die, how they were buried, and how they were remembered. Students will explore attitudes towards death and the dead expressed by all levels of society: official teachings of the afterlife, for example, will be treated alongside the widespread belief in ghosts, demons and vampires. Death was a visible and integral part of the rhythm of mediaeval and early-modern life, and the module will approach this fundamental phenomenon through the use of a wide-range of historical, literary and artistic sources.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3019  The Life of the Mind: Key Texts in European Thought, 1512-1697
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: This module explores the history of European thought between the late Renaissance and the beginning of the Enlightenment. The class will study (in translation) some of the most important texts from this period, including the work of Machiavelli, Montaigne, Grotius, Bacon, Hobbes and Bayle.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%
MO3020  Literacy and Society in Europe, 1500 - 1800
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Description: The period between the reformation and the French Revolution saw unprecedented shift from restricted to mass literacy across much of western Europe. During these three centuries, a majority of adult males in western Europe achieved basic literacy; the quality and quantity of publications changed rapidly; ideas influenced education, literacy, and literature, and were in turn influenced by them. Secular ideas spread in an age when much education was provided by clerics and when both elementary and post-elementary education focused on religious texts. This module will explore the extent of literacy, trends in publishing, the nature and extent of schooling and university training, the ideologies behind education, and the changing nature of oral and literate forms in everyday life. Fascinating and important in itself, a study of literacy and education provides an essential background for understanding the political, economic, and social development of early modern Europe.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3021 Tudor Political Thought
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Description: This module will examine the main texts and contexts of political thought in Tudor England. It will seek to identify political ideas and vocabulary and to situate debates and language in their historical contexts. Both political ideas and the rhetorical modes by which they were conceived and communicated to an audience, real or imagined, will be considered. The main agenda will include politics, religion, rhetoric, law and history.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3022 Food in Early Modern Europe
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1
Description: This module explores a range of issues in the cultural history of food in the early modern period. It begins by examining the basic economies of production, trade and exchange of food stuffs in the period 1450-1700. It then looks at the significance of food and food stuffs in early modern medical and religious thought and progresses to consider food within specific contexts of its production and consumption, such as the garden and the coffee house. Finally, it explores how food was prepared in the early modern period through reading early modern cookery books, and concludes with the cultural significance of food consumption in areas such as manners, art and music.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3023 Disease and the Environment, c. 1500 - 2000
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1
Description: Before they are members of political and religious groupings, humans are biological entities. As such, throughout history humans have had to devise complex strategies to cope with fundamental biological factors. Focusing primarily upon an Anglo-American context, this module examines the manner in which sickness and death have shaped human history – both biologically and culturally – over the past 500 years. Consideration of patients’ and practitioners’ expectations, and of the changing meanings of cure, treatment, and care, encourages students to appreciate changing attitudes to health, hygiene, healing and illness within the social history of medicine. Moreover, through an examination of medical practitioners, hospitals, quarantine, inoculation, imperialism, urbanization, and industrialization, students will gain an appreciation of the historical relationships between the environment and disease.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%
MO3025  Empire and Nation: The Settlement of British North America, 1587-1770
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: This module will explore the cultural and social aspects of European settlement in British North America, with a view to introducing students to the factors that shaped and challenged the formation of these new societies. Special emphasis will be placed on the wide-range of expectations and experiences that early settlers had of their New World and the effect of these forces on the ensuing colonies. The module will also address the question of an emerging American culture and identity and its relationship to metropolitan-colonial interaction.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.

MO3101  The Dutch Republic: Culture and Society in the Golden Age
Availability: Consult School
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: The Dutch Republic’s brief period as a great European power was a time of extraordinary economic and cultural achievement. Contemporaries recognised the Netherlands as a unique society, which flourished as a merchant republic in an age of royal absolutism. This course will explore various aspects of the Dutch achievement, its politics, social organisation and culture. Particular use will be made of Dutch art with a trip to an important collection of Dutch paintings envisaged as part of the course.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3103  The Rise of Prussia, c. 1600-1786
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: Prussia’s rise from the status of minor German electorate to that of the continent’s leading power by 1763 was the most spectacular political achievement of seventeenth- and eighteenth-century Europe. This course will examine the unique political, administrative, military and social factors which made this possible, and will devote particular attention to the reign of Frederick the Great (1740-86), when Prussia fully emerged as a major power.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3104  Transformation of the European Nobility, c.1600-1800
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: During the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries the nobilities of Europe faced a series of fundamental challenges to their traditional position as a military and landed elite. This course will examine the resulting social, economic, cultural and political transformations; the way in which the concept of ‘nobility’ itself came to be modified; the bases of noble power; and the developing contrasts between eastern and western Europe (including Britain).
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.

MO3105  James VI & I and his Kingdoms, 1603-1625
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Anti-requisite: SC3104
Description: After a survey of the practical experience and ideological preconceptions which James brought with him from the Scottish to the English and Irish thrones in 1603, this course looks at James VI and I as a multiple monarch of a kind very common in the early modern era, and surveys not only his three core kingdoms and the Americas, but also the very considerable problem of trying to secure harmony and co-ordination between the different units of the monarchy.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3107  Struggle for Supremacy in North America, 1607-1783
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: This course will examine the struggle for the control of North America, from the founding of the first English colony in 1607 until the winning of American independence in 1783. The first part of the course examines the clashes between natives and newcomers between the 1600s and 1750s, and the conflicts between the British and French colonial communities. That is followed by a study of the American struggle for independence from the Seven Years War (1756-63) until the final victory over Britain in 1783.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two 1 hour seminars.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3109  Household Authority in Early America, 1600-1815
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: This course focuses on shifting gender patterns and roles in America in the colonial and early national era, considering gender as a central organising principle of early American society. The course explores the experience of women and men, looking at their interactions across a variety of times, places and cultures. Topics as varied as cultural encounters, race, masculinity, witchcraft, religion, sex, slavery, print culture, revolution, and national identity will be discussed. There will be consideration of both continuities and changes in gender roles, as well as an assessment of political, social and cultural transitions in the early American landscape.
Class Hour: To be arranged.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3110  African Americans in Slavery and Freedom, 1620-1865
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: An exploration of the experiences of Africans in America from the beginnings of slavery until the American Civil War. The course focuses on the social, cultural and economic aspects of African slavery and freedom during the era in which America was transformed from a colony into a new nation. In particular we will address diversity of experience with discussions of slaves who worked on the land, in the cities, and on the seas. Attention will also be devoted to the Atlantic slave trade, how societies construct race, the world of America's slave owners and memory and slavery.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.

MO3203 British Industrialisation, 1700-1840
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: Consult School
Description: The course will examine the influences upon change in Britain and how far society was transformed by economic and social pressures and the growth of the overseas empire. Themes covered include the slave trade, the relationship of foreign trades to domestic growth, the role of warfare, the progress of the modern factory, the contribution of banks and finance, and why Britain was the first country to have an industrial revolution. Attention is given to the expansion of the colonial network in the Caribbean and how this generated wealth for Britain. Maritime rivalry, political and military affairs are discussed in the context of their effect upon economic progress.
Class Hour: To be arranged.

MO3206 The French Revolution, 1787-1795
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: Consult School
Description: The course covers the Revolution from its origins in the Aristocratic Revolt of 1787-1788 to the fall of Robespierre and the final defeat of the Parisian popular movement in 1794-1795. Particular attention will be given to the collapse of the Old Regime, the development of popular politics and the nature of the Terror including its provincial variations and impact.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3209 Politics and Power in England, 1702-1742
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Availability: Consult School
Description: This module will look at the political and social changes in England from the accession of Queen Anne to the fall of Sir Robert Walpole. The module will consider the rise of ministerial controls, the consolidation of party, the elections of these years, and the role of the Crown in the constitution, as well as looking at the role of individual politicians. We shall examine the changes in the position of Government, in political ideas, and in the relationship of English political elites to Scottish factions, and time will be spent on social questions which took up much contemporary comment, including rural crime, social disorder, and developments in consumer behaviour. We will also look at the wars of the period, and the growth of Empire.

MO3210 American Revolutions: Ordinary Lives & Extraordinary Times
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: This module, focusing on the series of events known as the American Revolution, places this Revolution in its larger social context. The Revolution began and functioned differently for distinct segments of the population, and this module will explore its varying effects. For whom was this a Revolution? The module will also look at the founding documents of American history, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, and the debates that surrounded them. Considerable attention will be given to people, such as workers, white women, African-Americans, and Native Americans, whose opinions were only informally consulted, if at all.
Class Hour: To be arranged.

MO3313 Economy and Society in France and Italy, 1870 - 1980
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Availability: Consult School
Description: This module examines the major economic, social and political factors which have shaped the historical development of two of the founding countries of the European Union. By comparing them it is hoped that the student will gain some understanding of the relationship of economic and social change to political behaviour, both between countries and within them. France and Italy provide an excellent starting point for comparative historical studies as they were late economic developers and have shared an explosive political history.
Class Hour: 11.00 am - 1.00 pm Thursday.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3314 Environmental History: Nature and the Western World, 1800-2000
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Description: This module is designed as an introduction to the environmental history of the western world over the past two centuries. It examines the intellectual history of environmental ideas and attitudes to nature, alongside the history of human impacts on the environment globally (the USA, Australasia, southern Africa and Great Britain will be used as case studies). Other topics addressed are the history of pollution and pesticide use, the history of our enjoyment of the countryside, species history, the rise of popular movements concerned with the environment, and the history of the role of the state in environmental protection. The history of the concept of National Parks and Nature Reserves is examined. No scientific knowledge is required by students.

MO3315  Egypt, 1798-1970: Imperialism and Nationalism in the Modern Middle East
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: The module covers the political history of modern Egypt from the French invasion of 1798 to the death of Gamal Abdul Nasser in 1970. This period saw Egypt’s emergence as a modern nation-state as the regional power of the Ottoman Empire gave way to the forces of local particularism, to ideas of political reform and nationalism, and to European imperialism. It includes the early history of liberal constitutional government in Egypt, and of militant illiberalism in both its secular and religious guises. It ends with the installation of Nasser’s military dictatorship, his early triumph over Great Britain and France in the Suez crisis, and the disaster of defeat by Israel in 1967.

MO3316  Filth and the Disease of Poverty in 19th-Century Britain
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: Accepting that the condition of the poor is a mirror to a culture, this module is designed to explore nineteenth-century responses to the “mischievous ambiguity of the word poor” in the united kingdom of Great Britain. Beginning with late eighteenth- and early nineteenth-century critiques of the Elizabethan Poor Law, it charts contemporary and historiographical attempts to classify and define the poor, pauperism, and poverty against a backdrop of infrequent or inadequate wages, sickness, disability, old age, and a burgeoning population. A persistent theme is the confluence of filth and pauperism within the moralistic, nineteenth-century commentaries on the residuum of casual labour. The module concludes with the Royal Commission of 1905-9, and the Liberal reforms.

MO3317  A 'Struggle for Mastery in Europe'? German Foreign Policy from Bismarck to Hitler, 1871-1939
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: "What is wrong with Germany" A.J.P. Taylor observed, "is that there is too much of it." After two World Wars, it seemed that ever since 1871 the German Reich had threatened European peace. Recent research, however, has emphasised the ambiguity of Germany's role in international politics. This module traces German foreign policy from the Bismarck and Wilhelmine periods through World War One and the inter-war years to the outbreak of World War Two. While focusing on the major foreign-political developments, the course also considers the instruments of German foreign policy; the social, economic and cultural forces influencing it; and historiographical debates which have arisen over it.

MO3318  Revolutions, Nationalism and Reaction: 1848-1849 in the German Lands
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Availability: 2002-03
Description: Contemporaries called it the ‘Crazy Year’. After decades of governmental oppression, the revolutions of 1848 threw Germany into an intoxicating period of liberty and change. German society underwent a process of political mobilisation. Peasants, craftsmen, workers, liberals, radicals, nationalists, Catholics, Protestants, jews, even women and proto-imperialists set about addressing their grievances. In order to establish new rights and institutions they utilised a wide spectrum of political means, ranging from riots to elected constituent assemblies. Their objectives were similarly heterogeneous. Peasants near Magdeburg demanded more pasture for their geese; the deputies of the Frankfurt Parliament tried to create a constitutional nation state. This module will try to draw an analytical portrait of the origins, events and consequences of seventeen dazzling, dramatic, momentous months in German history.

MO3401 Modernity and Crisis: Urban Germany, 1890-1939
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1
Description: During the mid-1920s German cities became synonymous with the image of modernity, mirrored in the confidence of the new architecture, cultural politics and life-styles of urbanites, and celebrated on film and in print. Between 1930 and 1935 the modernist project collapsed, only to be replaced by Nazi monumentalism in architecture on the one hand and a restrictive social and cultural life on the other. Historians agree that these two worlds, that of the mid-1920s and that under the Nazis, were alien to each other. Drawing on a variety of visual and printed material, students will explore the reality behind the image of urban modernity and the nature of the crisis that finally overtook it. One of the key questions posed is, how far apart were the two worlds of the mid-1920s and the 1930s city?

MO3413  British Society between the Wars, 1919-1939
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: This survey of British social history between the two world wars examines a range of issues, including: demographic change and the structure of the family, health and living standards, employment and unemployment, wealth distribution and the class structure, housing conditions, changing leisure pursuits, crime and religion. It also considers the experience of specific groups in society, particularly women, the young and the elderly. In general, it attempts some reconciliation of conflicting images of this era as, on the one hand, one of mass unemployment and poverty and, on the other, of increasing affluence and buoyant consumerism.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3415  America Since the New Deal
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: This module examines the major events in 20th-century American history, such as the New Deal, World War II and the Civil Rights Movement. In addition to the study of major presidential figures, it will also place special emphasis on the experiences of ordinary Americans. The continued role played by ethnicity throughout the 20th century will be explored as will the history of the American south.

MO3417  Britain and the “German Problem”, 1914 - 1939
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: This module explores British foreign policy regarding the ‘problem’ of Germany from the First World War to the failure of appeasement in 1939. The main focus is to analyse why the 1919 Peace Settlement failed to provide lasting stability and security in Europe and to evaluate the failure of Britain and the other major powers (particularly France and the US) either to contain or adequately reintegrate Germany during the 1920s. The legacy of these events is then discussed as the module moves to the developments in the 1930s, in particular the foreign policy of Nazi Germany and the response to appeasement.

MO3418  The First World War
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Availability: 2002-03
Description: This module covers the period from the outbreak of war in 1914 (exploring the origins of the conflict) to the peace settlements in 1919. The student is introduced to the issues (both political and psychological) surrounding the causes of the war, the nature of the combat, the outcome and the legacy. It deals not only with the war in Europe, but also in other theatres, at sea and on the home front.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%.

MO3501  The Nazi Occupation of Europe and the Holocaust
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: This course offers students the opportunity to examine, from a social historical perspective, the origins and structure of the planned racial re-ordering of Europe under Nazi control during the Second World War which led to the systematic murder of almost half of European Jewry. Emphasis will be placed as far as possible on the experience of the Holocaust and will conclude with a discussion of its legacy for contemporary European society.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%.

MO3503  The Cold War
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Anti-requisite: MO3504
Availability: 2003-04
Description: The war-time Alliance which defeated Nazi Germany in 1945 failed to survive beyond that event. The subsequent Cold War, characterised by the East-West divide, the arms race and ensuing international crises in Europe and elsewhere, is analysed in terms of the underlying strategic, ideological and economic factors. The main focus is the evolving super-power relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%.

MO3504  Central and Eastern Europe since 1945
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Anti-requisite: MO3503
Availability: 2002-03
Description: The collapse of the Soviet sphere of influence in Eastern Europe during 1989 has been amongst the most dramatic developments of recent years. The pattern of Soviet domination of this region is traced from the end of the Second World War through an examination of both the common and individual responses to this in the nations concerned. Countries studied include former East Germany, Poland, former Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania and former Yugoslavia.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%.
MO3508 America and Vietnam

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: America’s involvement in Vietnam will be examined in the widest possible sense. Topics will include the reasons for the intervention, the nature of the war, the effect on American Cold War foreign policy and the reasons for the American defeat. The course will also study the effects of the war on the culture of the 1960s and the enduring legacy of the Vietnam experience.

MO3511 Gender in Twentieth-Century America

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: This module analyses the evolution of gender roles in the United States during the twentieth century. It focuses on the way that major events such as the New Deal, World War Two and the Cold War changed the lives of men and women in the home, in politics and in the workplace. Attention is also devoted to the interaction of gender roles with class, ethnicity and race. Although the focus is primarily on the experiences of women, the module also explores the way that changes in women’s lives affected men.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3512 Black and White in Colour: South Africa in the Age of Segregation and Apartheid

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: The primary focus of the module is on the interaction between different social and ethnic groups. Themes examined include the conflict between the Empire and the Boers, the rise and decline of Afrikaner nationalism, and the strategies adopted by Africans, Indians and ‘Coloured’ people. Attention is also given to the impact of rapid urbanisation and industrialisation of South Africa and to the signal events of the country’s history - such as the Boer War, Rand Revolt, Sharpeville Massacre and Soweto Uprising. Historiographical debates are also examined.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3513 Heavenly Decade: The 1960s

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: This module will concern itself with the ‘Sixties experience’ as a worldwide phenomenon. The culture of ‘sex, drugs and rock and roll’ affected youth around the world. Social conventions were torn down in the frenzied obsession with rebellion and the ‘counterculture’. But there was also a majority who neither tuned in, turned on, nor dropped out - youths who deplored the drug culture, held sex sacred, and preferred the Beatles to the Rolling Stones. The module will examine the links between countercultural movements in Berkeley, Berlin, Paris, Mexico City and elsewhere. Due primarily to the availability of sources the module will have an American bias, but there will be sufficient exploration of youth movements in other countries to provide an illuminating cross-cultural perspective. The module will also explore whether the heavenly decade was mainly myth, important more in retrospect that at the time.

MO3514  The Life and Times of the Atom Bomb
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Anti-requisite: IR3010
Description: The module examines the period from 1900 to the present day not from the point of view of a single nation but from the vantage point of a single, catastrophic weapon. It combines science with politics, diplomacy, culture and social history. The first few sessions will concentrate on the development of the bomb and its effect upon the scientific community. We will then move to the use of the bomb in 1945, the development of more powerful weapons and the effect of these on Cold War relations. The module also examines how the bomb affected the lives of ordinary people, particularly in the areas of civil defence, peace movements, and popular culture.

MO4903  The Catholic Reformation, 1414-1650
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: This module offers a study of the variety of reform movements which sprang up within the Catholic Church in the late Mediaeval and Early Modern periods. Through an examination of a rich variety of sources, the course will examine, among other themes, the power struggles of the fifteenth century, the relationship between the Renaissance and religion, missions in the New World, the Inquisition and the tension between Tridentine Catholicism and the intellectual world of the seventeenth century. Students will consider the bonds between belief, politics and culture in the Early Modern period.

MO4904  Madness and its Social Milieu in Britain, 1560-1820
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: Madness is a source of fascination and dread in the modern world. The period between the end of the middle ages and the early years of the nineteenth century is seen as particularly important in forming our attitudes: because of changing understandings of and attitudes to insanity; and because of new types of care such as the origins of the asylum movement. In addition, analysing perceptions of mad behaviour allows unique insights to be gained into the social and cultural priorities of the sane. The module will allow students to use original documents to examine British society from an unusual perspective and to gain unique insights into the mental world of early modern people. In addition to the skills of critical reading, and documentary analysis, it will encourage an interdisciplinary and comparative approach, and will introduce students to quantitative research methodologies.

MO4905 Politics, Literature and the Reformation: Sir Thomas More
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: This module will investigate the life, writings and career of Sir Thomas More. Particular attention will be paid to More’s role as a European humanist, King’s councillor and politician and leading participant in the anti-Lutheran campaign of the early Reformation. The primary sources for his career and biography will be subjected to detailed scrutiny.
Class Hour: 10.00 am - 12 noon Wednesday.

MO4906 From Mediaeval Manuscript to the Internet. A short History of Communication
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the second year of the Honours Programme.
Anti-requisite: MO3024
Description: In a wide ranging investigation of the culture of print, this module will chart the evolution of the book from its beginnings in the monastic scriptorium to the mass, multi-media world of the present. It will demonstrate that in the intervening five centuries the book has shown itself to be a flexible and infinitely adaptable medium: this has been the key to its success, and its survival. In this context it will investigate the future of the book: in the age of information technology, has the book had its day? Or will the twenty-first century be the last great age of the culture of print?
Class Hour: 10.00 am - 12 noon Wednesday.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.

MO4907 Travellers and their Tales in Early America, 1550-1850
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: 2002-03 Available only to students in the second year of the Honours Programme.
Description: This module will examine travellers’ accounts of North America and its people. In examining these tales – penned by men and women from Europe, Africa and the Americas – we will understand more about the ways in which people from various distinct cultures understood and interacted with each other in the early American landscape. From early explorers’ accounts to captivity narratives to natural histories to plantation visits, we will delve into the worlds observed and captured by newcomers and sojourners. We will thus witness the myths and realities that helped to create and sustain a new world and a new nation.
Class Hour: 9.30 am – 11.30 pm Wednesday.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, Two 3 Hour Examinations = 60%

MO4911 The East India Company: Britain and India, 1600-1784
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: This course surveys two inter-locking themes over two centuries. One is the rise, apogee, and eventual disintegration of the Moghul Empire in India, and the other is the process whereby the East India Company, founded in 1600 in London as a purely commercial venture, became the eventual successor of that empire as ruler of India. The documents are a mixture of company record, contemporary travel narrative, and records of the Westminster parliament.

MO4912 French Absolutism: Richelieu to Louis XIV

Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: This course studies the growth of the administrative state in France between the 1630s and the 1680s. It examines the traditional mechanisms of government and their replacement after the mid-1630s by a streamlined central administration and by the provincial intendants, and then studies the struggle between the new state machinery and the earlier influential social groups. The theory and practice of absolutism and the wider impact on these changes are also examined. French is not required.

MO4921 Britain and its Empire in the Age of the Consumer Revolution, 1660-1820

Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the second year of the Honours Programme.
Description: This module will explore modern society’s first ‘consumer revolution’; that which gripped Britain and its American colonies from the late seventeenth century onwards. Themes include private consumers, manufacturers, the landscape and the town, and commercialisation. We will be investigating the role of fashion, mass-production techniques, innovation, the creation and expansion of markets and distribution networks, and questions of taste, style, emulation and class. Often, these phenomena have been addressed only from the point of view of leading industrialists and aristocratic consumers. However, as well as focussing on these figures, this course will also devote significant attention to the experience of small producers and lower class consumers during the period.
Class Hour: 9.30 am Wednesday.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.

MO4933 Britain and the Scramble for Africa, 1865-1904

Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: Between the mid 1860s and 1900 Britain increased its African empire thirty-fold, to encompass nearly a third of the continent and half its population. This module examines a number of major themes in late nineteenth-century British imperialism, with particular respect to the European ‘Scramble for Africa’, including: domestic politics and the empire; ‘jingoism’ and the popular culture of imperialism; the influence of businessmen and financiers upon imperial policy; technology and imperialism, including the impact of advances in European weaponry; the role of explorers and missionaries in colonial expansion; and the impact of empire upon indigenous populations, such as the Zulu nation. A specific focus of attention is the history of imperial expansion in southern Africa, as reflected in the careers of men like Cecil Rhodes and Alfred Milner, and in the events leading to the Anglo-Boer War of 1899-1902.

MO4934 Women, War and Peace

Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: This module will examine the experiences of women in industrialised war, the effect of war upon gender issues, and women’s contribution to peace movements. It will focus mainly upon wars since 1870, but will not be restricted to geographical area. The aim of the module will be to understand how women are affected by war, the contributions they have made and how war experiences and peace campaigns have shaped gender identity. Topics will include the eroticism of war, issues of motherhood, the combat exclusion, the masculinity of war, the femininity of peace, emancipation through participation, etc.
Class Hour: 10.00 am - 12.00 noon Wednesday.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.

MO4935  Charles Darwin and the Politics of Progress
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: The nineteenth century was the self-proclaimed age of progress. Consequently, it was an age obsessed with time, an age obsessed with origins. And just as human experience – human perfectibility – had become historicized, so too had nature. Natural history had become the history of nature. Drawing upon the rich primary and secondary sources generated by the ‘Darwin industry’, this module examines progressive developmentalism and evolutionary theories in the nineteenth century. Specifically, it considers the religious, political, and social implications of a belief in a constantly changing world, governed by natural laws. As current commentators fight for possession of “Darwinism”, it seems timely to assess the historical context and legacy of Charles Darwin.

MO4936  Bismarck: Biography – Politics – Mythology
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: 2002-03 Available only to students in the second year of the Honours Programme.
Description: A celebrated recent history of Germany accorded Otto von Bismarck almost biblical status. The book opens with a thunderous: ‘In the beginning was Bismarck’. An opinion poll published by the ‘Berlin Illustrated News’ in 1899 declared him the greatest statesman of the century. This module aims to approach, understand and evaluate the life, career and personality of this alleged giant. Scrutinising a large selection of primary sources and drawing on a rich body of sophisticated secondary literature, we will try to appreciate Bismarck both as a shaper and a product of his time. Consideration will also be given to Bismarck’s legacy in European and German politics as well as his role and function in the pantheon of Germany’s political iconography.

MO4942  The Development of Modern Scotland, 1932-82
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: The course will cover the development of modern Scotland in the British and European context. A broad interpretation will be given for changes in economic, social and political life, using material on culture and Scottish distinctiveness, on nationalism and politics, Socialism and religion, as well as covering explanations raised by historians and sociologists. Detailed attention will be given to fluctuations in the economy, including the depression of the thirties, the wartime and post-war boom, and the industrial collapse of 1979-82. Other areas for study will include the influence of Government upon the economy, developments in housing and health, decline in the heavy industries and the role of political parties and local authorities.

MO4945 The Promised Lands: Great Britain and the Arabs, 1914-1923

Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Description: Israel and most Arab states in the modern Middle East owe their separate existence to the defeat of the Ottoman Empire by European powers in the First World War. This course examines the Ottoman defeat, the dismantling of the empire in the post-war peace treaties, and the political reconstruction of the Middle East by the victorious Europeans. It explores the motives and objectives of the British Empire and its ally France in this process, and those of Arab nationalists whom the allied victory also brought to prominence. It examines critically the value judgements found in historians’ attitudes to both European imperialism and Arab nationalism, and in particular the controversy over Great Britain’s wartime promises to the Arabs, and its support for Zionist settlement in Palestine.

MO4947 History and Historians in Twentieth-Century Britain

Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: 2003-04
Description: This thematised Special Subject explores the historiographical currents and major texts that have formed the context within which British historians have worked in the twentieth-century. The study is not confined to formal treatises but includes writing about the nature of history and fictional representations of the past. In the case of a historiographical study, the primary sources (mandatory for a Special Subject) also include sources categorised as secondary for other purposes. They will constitute a “bank” of prescribed texts, a subset of which will be used in any one year.

MO4955  History at the Movies: The Early Modern Years
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the second year of the Honours Programme.
Description: Films are the most important medium by which the general public is confronted by History and arguably film directors and actors are as important in shaping how the general public interprets the past as professional historians. It is, therefore, important that historians engage with this powerful mass media. It is the purpose of this module to broaden the intellectual experience of history students by confronting them with representations of the past that lie beyond written record and interpretation. The objective of this module is to ask searching questions about the relationship between the cinema and history by examining films set in the period c. 1500 to c 1789, thus providing students with the critical apparatus to read historical movies.

Description: The century between 1450 and 1550 was a true ‘golden age’ of Scottish culture, encompassing not only the literary output of the Makars - Henryson, Dunbar, Douglas and Lindsay - but also a rich variety of other cultural achievements in fields as diverse as philosophy, music and architecture. The purpose of this course is to explore the full range of Scottish cultural life in the Renaissance period in its social and political contexts and with reference to the wider world of European culture.
Class Hour: 11.00 am – 1.00 pm Friday
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.

SC3024  Plantagenet and Bruce: The Struggle for Dominance in the British Isles, 1250-1340
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Availability: 2003-04
Description: Between 1250 and 1340 the peoples of England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland experienced a period of massive upheaval as rival rulers sought to redraw the political map of the British Isles. The wars of conquest launched by Edward I against the principality of Wales and the kingdom of Scots, the war of resistance waged by the Scots against the Plantagenet kings and the war of aggression waged by Robert Bruce in Ireland and northern England formed a series of interlinked conflicts which violently altered relations between the peoples of the British Isles. Using contemporary records, chronicles and verse, the course and character of this warfare will be examined, both as a product of ambitious rulers and as the first clash of national communities within these islands.
Class Hour: 11.00 am - 1.00 pm Friday.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

SC3025  The Castle in Medieval Scotland 1100-1550
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Availability: 2002-03
Description: Castles remain the most impressive physical reminders of Scotland’s medieval past. The great royal fortresses of Edinburgh and Stirling provide symbols of Scotland’s past nationhood; the ruined walls and towers of baronial castles demonstrate the power and pretensions of the great lords of the middle ages. As military strongholds, centres of government and lordship, and residences of royal and aristocratic households, these castles give access to the main themes of medieval Scottish politics and society. This module will study the castle in its context. The changing needs of military and domestic architecture in response to the needs of war and peace, the siting of castles and their use in wider structures of authority from Lothian and the marches to the Hebrides, and their role in warfare, as places of refuge and as bases for garrisons, will all be considered. Architectural and archaeological evidence will be combined with descriptions of the Scottish castle in chronicles and record sources to obtain a full understanding of the buildings and their functions.
Class Hour: 11.00 am – 1.00 pm Friday.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar. One field trip.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

SC3026  Normans, Natives and Norsemen: Scotland c. 1050 - 1250
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2003-04
Description: This module explores the creation of the Scottish kingdom in the eleventh to twelfth centuries. The period sees the institutional and territorial unification of the mainland territories of the kingdom, a process which was a pre-requisite for the development of the durable identity which was to preserve the nation not simply through the Wars of Independence but also through subsequent periods of Union with England. The course will be structured thematically rather than chronologically looking at the cultural and political development of the kingdom. In the first part of the course the themes investigated will primarily be discrete areas of cultural and institutional development. In the second part we shall work through the different frontiers of the kingdom in turn (South, West, North and East).
Class Hour: 10.00 am - 12 noon Tuesday.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

<td>Whole Year</td>
<td>2003-04 Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.</td>
<td>The purpose of this course is to examine forms of national consciousness and identity in Britain in the centuries before the Union of Crowns. Focussing in particular on the role of historians in defining cultural identity, it explores what it meant to be Scottish or English in the late mediaeval and early modern periods, and how difficult it was to persuade people to think of themselves as British.</td>

<td>The Bruce Cause: The Making of Late Mediaeval Scotland</td>
<td>60.0</td>
<td>Whole Year</td>
<td>2002-03 Available to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.</td>
<td>From the fourteenth century onwards Robert Bruce has been identified as the champion of the Scottish People against English domination. The Bruce cause, the survival and defence of Robert’s dynasty as kings of Scots, has been equated with the National cause, the liberties and independence of the realm and community of Scotland. However, this association of dynasty and nation was neither automatic nor immediate. It was only with the state-sponsored composition of Barbour’s epic poem -The Bruce- in the 1370s that Bruce’s historical reputation and political legacy were secured. This module examines this reputation and legacy by examining in depth the rise and survival of the Bruce dynasty between 1306 and 1371. Themes to be considered will be the presentation of rights and duties of both king and people in contemporary sources, the emergence of a nobility dominated by men bound to the Bruce cause, and the character of relations with England.</td>

SC4107 Conflict and Cohabitation: Northern Britain c.550 - 750

Credits: 60.0 Semester: Whole Year

Availability: 2002-03. Available only to students in the second year of the Honours Programme

Description: In the decades around AD700 a number of northern writers, notably Adomnán of Iona (†704) and Bede of Monkwearmouth-Jarrow (†735), looked back on the history of their region. Their historical horizons, for different reasons, lay in the middle of the sixth century. This course looks at the way their world was created both in terms of the rise of the Christian Church as a force to be reckoned with and in the establishment of powerful political hegemonies. Central to the course will be an attempt to grasp the interaction between the different peoples, Britons, Picts, Angles and Gaels.

Class Hour: Wednesday 9.30 am - 12.30 pm

Teaching: One seminar.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, Two 3 Hour Examinations = 60%
