Modules

Normally the prerequisite for each of the following Honours modules is entry to the Honour Programme(s) for which they are specified, as well as any additional specific prerequisite(s) given.

General degree and non-graduating students wishing to enter 3000 or 4000 level modules must consult with the relevant Honours Adviser within the School before making their selection.

Arabic (AR) Modules

AR3205 Media Arabic
- Credits: 15.0
- Semester: 1
- Prerequisite: AR2002
- Description: This module introduces the Arabic media and current news topics through newspaper material, radio transcripts and tapes. It teaches basic Arabic-English/English-Arabic oral interpreting, written translation into and out of the basic language of current affairs, and aims to develop students’ self-teaching skills.
- Class Hour: To be arranged.
- Teaching: Two hours.
- Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 2 Hour Examination = 40%, Oral Examination = 20%

AR3211 The Koran
- Credits: 30.0
- Semester: 2
- Prerequisite: Open to any student in the third or subsequent year of study, subject to the permission of the Head of School
- Description: The module introduces students to the text of the Koran in translation and to the field of modern Koranic studies. It addresses the problems of the Koran’s historical provenance by considering its content, the traditional biography of the Prophet Muhammad, and the critical discussions of modern scholarship. It examines the Koranic definition of Islam and the relationship it asserts between Islam and earlier versions of Middle Eastern monotheism. It also examines the legislative content of the Koran, especially social legislation concerning the family and the status of women in society. The module does not require a knowledge of Arabic.
- Class Hour: To be arranged.
- Teaching: Two seminars.
- Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

AR3222 Mediaeval Arabic Prose Literature
- Credits: 30.0
- Semester: 2
- Prerequisite: AR2002
- Description: This module, taught in English and Arabic, is designed to give students taking an Arabic degree a general grounding in classical Arabic/Islamic culture and to enable them to recognise continuities with modern culture. It starts by discussing the formative period of Islamic culture, then studies selected Arabic stories which show typical ways in which mediaeval writers thought about religion, individuals and society. Topics treated in the selection include women, sex and society, and Muslim views of Islamic history.
- Class Hour: To be arranged.
- Teaching: Two hours and one seminar/tutorial.
- Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

AR3234 Modern Arabic Literature : Introduction to the Short Story
- Credits: 15.0
- Semester: 1
- Prerequisite: AR2002
- Description: This module will include discussion in English of the literary/historical background of modern Arabic fiction and an introduction to the modern Arabic short story, with readings in Arabic from stories written between the 1920s and 1970s. Its aim will be to combine the development of literary translation skills with close textual analysis and some broader cultural and literary discussion.
- Class Hour: To be arranged.
- Teaching: Two hours.
- Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 2 Hour Examination = 60%
History - Honours

AR3236 The Postcolonial Arabic Novel in Translation

Credits: 30.0
Semester: 1
Prerequisite: Open to any student in the third or subsequent year of study, subject to the permission of the Head of School.

Description: This module will start with an overview of the historical background and a brief survey of the development of postcolonial Arabic fiction. For the rest of the module students will follow a programme of supervised reading in English of important examples of modern Arabic fiction such as novels by Naguib Mahfouz, Elias Khoury and Hanan al-Shaykh.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two hours.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

AR4204 Advanced Translation

Credits: 30.0
Semester: 1
Prerequisites: AR3205, AR3222 and AR3234
Anti-requisite: AR3204

Description: This module develops written translation skills over a broader linguistic range than that of AR3205. Students will study ways of translating from Arabic into English using texts of a variety of periods, genres and registers relevant to the understanding of contemporary issues and culture. They will also learn how to translate different kinds of modern and contemporary English texts into Modern Standard Arabic.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Three hours.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

AR4223 Typology, Theme and Narrative in Mediaeval Islamic Historiography

Credits: 30.0
Semester: 2
Anti-requisite: AR3223

Description: This module is taught in English using translations of mediaeval Arabic texts. It begins with an overview of historical background and reference works, and a general introduction to the themes and sources studied in the course. This is followed by case studies in family history and historical legend, a discussion of the treatment of character and motivation in a longer historical narrative, and a comparison of a poem on an historical event and historical accounts of the same event. The texts studied date from the ninth and tenth centuries A.D and deal with the period from early Islam to the tenth century A.D.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two hours, divided between lectures/reading classes and seminars.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

AR4224 Religious Thought

Credits: 30.0
Semester: 1
Prerequisites: AR3205, AR3234, AR3222

Description: This module is taught in Arabic and English. It begins with readings from the Hadith, the reports of sayings and doings attributed to the Prophet which are considered "second only to the Quran in holiness", and looks at the importance of Tradition in classical and contemporary Islam. The second part of the module looks at radical Islam, and centres on readings from Sayyid Qutb (d 1966), al-Adala al-Ijtima'iyya fi al-Islam ("Social Justice in Islam").

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two lectures and one seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%
AR4232 Modern Arabic Literature: Exile and Identity

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2003-04
Prerequisites: AR3205, AR3222 and AR3234
Anti-requisite: AR3232

ME3219 Guibert of Nogent and his World

Credits: 30.0
Semester: 1
Availability: 2004-05
Description: This option will examine the world of Guibert of Nogent (1053-1124) a monk of northern France primarily through his own writings in translation. Several themes will emerge from his works: monasticism and the religious life; self and autobiography; social and political change in northern France during the late eleventh and early twelfth centuries; the first crusade. Works of near contemporaries such as Suger of St. Denis, and Peter Abelard will also be studied together with chronicles of the period, in order to provide comparisons both in genre of literature and for the rich and varied perspectives they afford on the religious, cultural, social and political world of northern France at this time. Questions of historical approach will also be raised such as the discovery of the individual and the use or misuse of psychoanalytical ideas in history.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%
ME3220  War Lords and Holy Men

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Availability: 2004-05

Description: This module explores two momentous themes in European history: (i) the disintegration of the Roman empire and the emergence of 'barbarian' successor kingdoms and (ii) the Christianisation of Europe. It will take as its main focus the kingdom of the Franks, and use this as a basis for comparison and contrast with other early mediaeval kingdoms, both Anglo-Saxon and continental. After introductory lectures, some well-documented case-studies of clashes between rulers and religious figures will be studied in detail to examine themes such as: the end of Roman rule and the establishment of successor kingdoms in Britain, Gaul and Italy; the nature of early mediaeval kingship; early mediaeval ideas of Christian holiness; monasticism and mission; saints and miracles; the uses of wealth. Seminars will take as their focus some of the many primary sources for this period that are available in paperback translation.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

ME3222  Inca Civilisation and its Destruction

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2003-04

Description: The Inca Empire (Tahuantinsuyu) dominated the Andean region for about a century before the Spanish Conquest. Its creation and consolidation were the achievement of three great rulers (Incas) who held sway in the Andes from the 1430s to the 1520s: Pachacutec, Topa, and Huayna Capac. The aim of this module is to study the society, religion, art, and political and military organisation of this empire, partly through the post-Conquest written sources, and partly through the architecture and artefacts left by the conquered indigenous population. It also asks how Pizarro, with less than 200 conquistadors, succeeded in 1532 in conquering an empire of some eight million people, and what happened to the native population in the aftermath of conquest.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two 1 hour seminars.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

ME3223  Politics and Power in Carolingian and Ottonian Europe, c. 800-1000

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2004-05

Description: This module deals with the political history of Europe under the hegemony of the Carolingian and Ottonian dynasties. Beginning with the emperor Charlemagne, the module traces the subsequent disintegration of the pan-European Carolingian empire under his successors, and the emergence of the Ottonian successor kingdom of the tenth century. Central themes will be the changing nature of the early mediaeval politics; the construction and maintenance of royal power through ritual, history-writing and iconography; the ethos of the aristocracy; warfar and the impact of the Viking and Magyar raids; the development of the office of queenship; relations with Byzantium; and the importance of the period for the emergence of Europe.

ME3224  Legend and History in Sub-Roman Britain
Credits:  30.0  Semester:  1
Availability:  2003-04
Description: This module investigates the archaeological and literary sources relating to the final phase of British History when Welsh, English, Gaelic and Pictish identities were beginning to emerge. Particular attention will be paid to the way in which a relatively meagre database was rapidly swallowed up in the mythmaking process that was early medieval historiography. Students will gain and understanding of the ending of Roman Britain as it was and as it was perceived. The majority of classes will be based around a single episode or character, examining the way in which legend gathered around a historical core as the centuries proceeded. The course will attempt to draw the strands together and evaluate what we really know about the ending of Roman Britain together with a detailed examination of Historia Brittonum the first full-length attempt to produce a synthesised narrative of the period.
Class Hour:  10.00 am Tuesday.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

ME3408  The Black Death and the Peasants’ Revolt in England
Credits:  30.0  Semester:  1
Availability:  2003-04
Description: The Black Death was the greatest natural disaster in recorded history, killing about one third of the population of England (and Europe) between 1347 and 1350. This module will examine the social, economic and political consequences of the plague in England during the second half of the fourteenth century, with particular emphasis on the part it played in stimulating violent social unrest such as the great rising of 1381. Original sources in translation will be used extensively.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two 1 hour seminars.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

ME3411  The Mediaeval Castle
Credits:  30.0  Semester:  2
Availability:  2003-04
Description: This module surveys the architectural development of mediaeval castles in Western Europe and the Near East from the eleventh to the fifteenth centuries. About half the time is devoted to castles in the British Isles and the other to selected areas elsewhere, notably France, Spain, the Baltic lands and the Crusader Levant. The emphasis will be on archaeological and architectural history and the role of the castle in war and peace.
Class Hour: To be arranged.

ME4803  The Fourth Crusade
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: 2003-04 Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: This module will examine the context, events, aftermath and historiography of the Fourth Crusade, through a close analysis of the contemporary sources. This has often been seen as a controversial topic, one open to very different interpretations. The modern scholarship approaches the event from differing perspectives, that of historians of the Mediaeval West and of Byzantium. The sources available in translation also reflect a multiplicity of viewpoints; many of these translations are very recent. By close analysis of the sources, the student will be able to reconstruct the events, and arrive at interpretations of them, for themselves.
Class Hour: 9.30 am - 12.30 pm.
Teaching: Two one-and-a-half hour seminars.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, Two 3 Hour Examinations = 60%

ME4806  The Age of Charlemagne
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: 2003-04 Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: A close reading of a wide range of primary sources in translation allows us to examine (I) how Charlemagne’s empire was established and how in the ninth century it began to disintegrate; (ii) the growth of an ideology of rulership which sustained the empire and was manifested in art, architecture and religious ritual; and (iii) the programme of religious and cultural renewal which Charlemagne attempted to implement.
Class Hour: 9.30 am - 12.30 pm Wednesday.
Teaching: One three hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, Two 3 Hour Examinations = 60%

ME4807  The Early Mendicants: Francis, Clare and Dominic, c. 1180 - c. 1270
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: 2003-04 Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: This module will use a rare combination of written and visual sources to examine and compare the personalities, careers and impact of Saints Francis, Clare and Dominic and the Orders they founded. Themes to be considered will include the influence of their immediate predecessors and contemporaries in the ‘evangelical awakening’, the problems posed by the sources for the lives of the saints themselves, poverty, mendicancy and itinerant preaching, the impact of their cults on art and architecture, institutional developments and relations with the papacy, the secular church, the inquisition and the universities.
Class Hour: 9.30 am - 12.30 pm Wednesday.
Teaching: Two one-and-a-half hour seminars.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, Two 3 Hour Examinations = 60%

ME4809  History, Hagiography and Politics in the Sixth Century: The World of Gregory of Tours
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: 2004-05 Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: Gregory, bishop of Tours (573-594) came from a provincial Roman aristocratic family but lived through the reigns of some of the most colourful and powerful barbarian rulers of the early Middle Ages. He chronicled the deeds of saints and kings in his copious and engaging writings, all of which are available in English translation. On the basis of his works, Gregory has been characterised as typical of the late antique world and as representative of ‘barbarian’ Europe of the early middle Ages. Through a study of Gregory’s writings and their cultural and political context, this module explores the transition from the ancient world to the middle Ages.
Class Hour: 9.30 am - 12.30 pm Wednesday.
Teaching: Two one-and-a-half hour seminars.

ME4901 The Cult of Saints
Credits: 60.0 Semester: Whole Year
Availability: 2003-04 Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: This module studies a central aspect of mediaeval religious life, the veneration of the saints. In Martinmas Semester we will survey the history of the cult of the saints from its origins to the Reformation, drawing on sources and literature from the whole of western Christendom. In the second semester we will take a detailed case study. Issues covered include the patronage of the saints, hagiographic literature, miracles of healing and punishment, the canon law of relics, the geography, chronology and sociology of cults, the political aspect of cults and the surviving material evidence of shrines, buildings and pictorial representations.
Class Hour: 9.30 am - 12.30 pm Wednesday.
Teaching: Two one-and-a-half hour seminars.

ME4904 England and France at War in the Fourteenth Century
Credits: 60.0 Semester: Whole Year
Availability: 2003-04 Available only to students in the second year of Honours Programme
Anti-requisite: ME3405
Description: The traditional dates of the Hundred Years War are 1337-1453. It was from the 1290s, however, that tensions began to build between England and France in the regions (such as Gascony, Scotland and the Low Countries) which were to play the crucial role in the outbreak of war in 1337, and it was during the first two decades of the fourteenth century - at Courtrai in 1302, for example, and at Bannockburn in 1314 - that the new military tactics which were to prove so effective after 1337 were developed. The initial aim of this module is to study the diplomatic and military history of England, France and their allies both in the build-up to full-scale war and during the first two phases (1337-96) of what is known as the Hundred Years War. It also looks in detail at areas such as military organisation, the chivalric ethos, the laws and customs of war in relation to things such as sieges or the treatment of prisoners of war, the economic and social impact of war, and the literature of war. A substantial part of the course will be devoted to in-depth study of contemporary chronicles of the war, particularly the chronicles of Jean Froissart.
Class Hour: 9.30 am - 12.30 pm Wednesday.
Teaching: One 3 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

ME4905 Lords of the Landscape: Shepherds and Sheep in Mediaeval England and Castile
Credits: 60.0 Semester: Whole Year
Availability: 2003-04
Anti-requisite: ME3412
Description: This module aims to combine economic, social and landscape history, geography and archaeology to establish a comparison between the development of Castile and England in the Late Middle Ages. It will look at the environmental consequences of the main economic activities in both regions, sheep-grazing and the international wool trade. The module also aims to introduce students to major environmental debates and the relevance of history to understanding long-term environmental change.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two one-and-a-half hour seminars.

Modern History (MO) Modules

MO3008  The Habsburgs and Germany in the Sixteenth Century: Maximilian I to Rudolf II, 1477-1612

Credits: 30.0
Semester: 2

Description: By the beginning of the sixteenth century the Holy Roman Empire was decidedly German in character and wholly identified with the Habsburg dynasty. The course examines the turbulent relationship between the Habsburg rulers and the German nation, concentrating on the attempts to create a unified state out of a fragmented confederation of principalities and city states. Themes to be considered include problems, conflicts of jurisdiction and confessionalisation.

Class Hour: To be arranged.

Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3011  Society and Religious Change in Sixteenth-Century France

Credits: 30.0
Semester: 1

Availability: Contact School

Anti-requisite: MO4902

Description: This module examines how France faced the two major challenges of the age: the trend towards more centralised state-building, stimulated in part by the changing nature of warfare in the sixteenth century and the urge on the part of European monarchies to create a new monarchy; and the challenge posed by the divisions of European Christendom resulting from the Protestant Reformation. A central question to be answered is why France succeeded in meeting the first challenge so successfully, as epitomised by the ‘Renaissance’ monarchy of Francis I, but then collapsed so weakly in the face of the growth of Calvinism in the second half of the century.

Class Hour: To be arranged.

Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3012  The Medici, Savonarola and Machiavelli: Florence 1434-1527

Credits: 30.0
Semester: 1

Description: This module focuses on the periods of Medici rule from Cosimo’s seizure of power to the Sack of Rome. Seminars will concentrate on how power, religion and intellectual activity were expressed in the visual and written cultures of a Renaissance state. Students will examine Medicean art of statecraft, family rivalries, patronage and opposition to oligarchical rule.

Class Hour: To be arranged.

Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%
MO3015  The Mental World of the Individual and the Collective in England, 1550-1800
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: Men, women and children in pre-industrial England lived in a very different world from their twentieth-century counterparts. Life was insecure, painful and short; understanding of man and nature was rudimentary; belief systems were very different. The material and intellectual environment produced distinctive and fascinating attitudes. By examining the way people thought and acted about (for example) death, being young or old, magic, and crime; about the material and the spiritual context; about themselves and about those around them - we can recreate the changing mental world of the English as individuals and as a society.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3016  State-building and Social Change in Sixteenth-Century Europe
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: This module examines some of the crucial events and underlying structural changes in society during a transitional era in European society. Traditionally the sixteenth century has been seen as a time when European society emerged from the Mediaeval era to something recognizably pre-Modern. This module will examine these ‘modern’ elements - the emergence of new nation states, the growth of a mass information technology with the spread of literacy and printing, and the engagement with non-European societies - with a skeptical eye. It will examine how far these structural developments actually impacted on the lives of Europe’s peoples; and whether, indeed, patterns of thought and living were recognizably different from those of the Late Middle Ages. Topics to be considered will include the history of food, medicine and transport. A second special feature will be a consideration of life in Europe beyond the Atlantic and Mediterranean nations which dominate most textbooks of the period.

MO3018  Death and the Dead in Late Mediaeval and Early Modern Europe, c.1350-1650
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: This module examines the universal experience of death in late-mediaeval and early-modern Europe. It begins with the principal causes of death and then considers how people prepared to die, how they were buried, and how they were remembered. Students will explore attitudes towards death and the dead expressed by all levels of society: official teachings of the afterlife, for example, will be treated alongside the widespread belief in ghosts, demons and vampires. Death was a visible and integral part of the rhythm of mediaeval and early-modern life, and the module will approach this fundamental phenomenon through the use of a wide-range of historical, literary and artistic sources.

MO3020  Literacy and Society in Europe, 1500 - 1800
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: The period between the reformation and the French Revolution saw unprecedented shift from restricted to mass literacy across much of western Europe. During these three centuries, a majority of adult males in western Europe achieved basic literacy; the quality and quantity of publications changed rapidly; ideas influenced education, literacy, and literature, and were in turn influenced by them. Secular ideas spread in an age when much education was provided by clergies and when both elementary and post-elementary education focused on religious texts. This module will explore the extent of literacy, trends in publishing, the nature and extent of schooling and university training, the ideologies behind education, and the changing nature of oral and literate forms in everyday life. Fascinating and important in itself, a study of literacy and education provides an essential background for understanding the political, economic, and social development of early modern Europe.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

MO3023  Disease and the Environment, c. 1500 - 2000
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: Before they are members of political and religious groupings, humans are biological entities. As such, throughout history humans have had to devise complex strategies to cope with fundamental biological factors. Focusing primarily upon an Anglo-American context, this module examines the manner in which sickness and death have shaped human history – both biologically and culturally – over the past 500 years. Consideration of patients’ and practitioners’ expectations, and of the changing meanings of cure, treatment, and care, encourages students to appreciate changing attitudes to health, hygiene, healing and illness within the social history of medicine. Moreover, through an examination of medical practitioners, hospitals, quarantine, inoculation, imperialism, urbanization, and industrialization, students will gain an appreciation of the historical relationships between the environment and disease.

MO3025  Empire and Nation: The Settlement of British North America, 1587-1770
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: This module will explore the cultural and social aspects of European settlement in British North America, with a view to introducing students to the factors that shaped and challenged the formation of these new societies. Special emphasis will be placed on the wide-range of expectations and experiences that early settlers had of their New World and the effect of these forces on the ensuing colonies. The module will also address the question of an emerging American culture and identity and its relationship to metropolitan-colonial interaction.

MO3026  Art and Piety in Western Europe, 1400-1750
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: What can visual evidence tell us about religious belief? This module will begin by exploring the use of religious images during the late-medieval period. In the sixteenth century Protestant reformers questioned the value of religious art, and in parts of Europe there was an extensive iconoclasm. The module will consider the motives of the iconoclasts and the forms that their actions took. The module will also look at Catholic attempts to reform religious art and at the flowering of visual piety in the wake of the Council of Trent. Seminar classes and student assignments will make extensive use of pictures as well as of texts.

MO3027  Women and Men in Europe, 1500-1800
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: What were relations between women and men like during the early modern period? This module will assess the impact of major intellectual and social movements - the Renaissance, the Reformation and the Scientific Revolution - on legal, scientific and philosophical ideas about women. It will also examine women's day-to-day experiences, focusing on themes such as marriage and the family, sexuality and the body, work and religion. It will explore notions of masculinity and femininity, considering how these were constructed and how their meanings have changed over time.

MO3028  The Reign of Henry VIII, 1509-1547
Credits: 30.0  Semester: Either
Description: This module explores the tumultuous reign of Henry VIII, perhaps England’s most famous—or notorious—monarch. Thanks to his extraordinary marital record and the events which flowed from nationalisation of the English Church, Henry has been the subject of fierce controversy from his own time down to the present day. Although a hero to some, he is a villain to others. Combining detailed study of historiography and printed primary sources, this course encourages students to explore the politics of writing history and to consider the rôle of ideas and individuals in shaping events of major historical significance.

MO3101  The Dutch Republic: Culture and Society in the Golden Age
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: Consult School
Description: The Dutch Republic’s brief period as a great European power was a time of extraordinary economic and cultural achievement. Contemporaries recognised the Netherlands as a unique society, which flourished as a merchant republic in an age of royal absolutism. This course will explore various aspects of the Dutch achievement, its politics, social organisation and culture. Particular use will be made of Dutch art with a trip to an important collection of Dutch paintings envisaged as part of the course.

MO3103  The Rise of Prussia, c. 1600-1786
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: Prussia’s rise from the status of minor German electorate to that of the continent’s leading power by 1763 was the most spectacular political achievement of seventeenth- and eighteenth-century Europe. This course will examine the unique political, administrative, military and social factors which made this possible, and will devote particular attention to the reign of Frederick the Great (1740-86), when Prussia fully emerged as a major power.

MO3104 Transformation of the European Nobility, c.1600-1800
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: During the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries the nobilities of Europe faced a series of fundamental challenges to their traditional position as a military and landed elite. This course will examine the resulting social, economic, cultural and political transformations; the way in which the concept of ‘nobility’ itself came to be modified; the bases of noble power; and the developing contrasts between eastern and western Europe (including Britain).

MO3109 Household Authority in Early America, 1600-1815
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: This course focuses on shifting gender patterns and roles in America in the colonial and early national era, considering gender as a central organising principle of early American society. The course explores the experience of women and men, looking at their interactions across a variety of times, places and cultures. Topics as varied as cultural encounters, race, masculinity, witchcraft, religion, sex, slavery, print culture, revolution, and national identity will be discussed. There will be consideration of both continuities and changes in gender roles, as well as an assessment of political, social and cultural transitions in the early American landscape.

MO3110 African Americans in Slavery and Freedom, 1620-1865
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: An exploration of the experiences of Africans in America from the beginnings of slavery until the American Civil War. The course focuses on the social, cultural and economic aspects of African slavery and freedom during the era in which America was transformed from a colony into a new nation. In particular we will address diversity of experience with discussions of slaves who worked on the land, in the cities, and on the seas. Attention will also be devoted to the Atlantic slave trade, how societies construct race, the world of America's slave owners and memory and slavery.

MO3204 Austria in the Age of Maria Theresa and Mozart, 1740 – 1792
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: Austria’s political and cultural achievements during the half-century after Maria Theresa’s accession in 17450 were remarkable. The most radical programme of ‘reform from above’ in later eighteenth-century Europe was accompanied by Vienna’s emergence as the musical centre of the continent during the age of Haydn and Mozart. This module will examine these twin developments in their social and cultural context, and will study the role of the Habsburg dynasty and of their nobilities in bringing this about.

MO3210 American Revolutions: Ordinary Lives & Extraordinary Times

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2

Description: This module, focusing on the series of events known as the American Revolution, places this Revolution in its larger social context. The Revolution began and functioned differently for distinct segments of the population, and this module will explore its varying effects. For whom was this a Revolution? The module will also look at the founding documents of American history, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, and the debates that surrounded them. Considerable attention will be given to people, such as workers, white women, African-Americans, and Native Americans, whose opinions were only informally consulted, if at all.

MO3308 Approaches to Historical Theory

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2

Description: This introductory module asks questions about the degree to which, and the ways in which, history may be considered a theoretical subject. The module will be organised around the problems posed by the nature and limits of historical knowledge; the shaping of the past by historians; the validity of historical explanations; and competing styles of method deployed by historians over the past two centuries. No philosophical background is required.

MO3314 Environmental History: Nature and the Western World, 1800-2000

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2

Description: This module is designed as an introduction to the environmental history of the western world over the past two centuries. It examines the intellectual history of environmental ideas and attitudes to nature, alongside the history of human impacts on the environment globally (the USA, Australasia, southern Africa and Great Britain will be used as case studies). Other topics addressed are the history of pollution and pesticide use, the history of our enjoyment of the countryside, species history, the rise of popular movements concerned with the environment, and the history of the role of the state in environmental protection. The history of the concept of National Parks and Nature Reserves is examined. No scientific knowledge is required by students.

MO3315 Egypt, 1798-1970: Imperialism and Nationalism in the Modern Middle East

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1

Description: The module covers the political history of modern Egypt from the French invasion of 1798 to the death of Gamal Abdul Nasser in 1970. This period saw Egypt’s emergence as a modern nation-state as the regional power of the Ottoman Empire gave way to the forces of local particularism, to ideas of political reform and nationalism, and to European imperialism. It includes the early history of liberal constitutional government in Egypt, and of militant illiberalism in both its secular and religious guises. It ends with the installation of Nasser’s military dictatorship, his early triumph over Great Britain and France in the Suez crisis, and the disaster of defeat by Israel in 1967.

MO3316  Filth and the Disease of Poverty in 19th-Century Britain

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2

Description: Accepting that the condition of the poor is a mirror to a culture, this module is designed to explore nineteenth-century responses to the “mischievous ambiguity of the word poor” in the United Kingdom of Great Britain. Beginning with late eighteenth- and early nineteenth-century critiques of the Elizabethan Poor Law, it charts contemporary and historiographical attempts to classify and define the poor, pauperism, and poverty against a backdrop of infrequent or inadequate wages, sickness, disability, old age, and a burgeoning population. A persistent theme is the confluence of filth and pauperism within the moralistic, nineteenth-century commentaries on the residuum of casual labour. The module concludes with the Royal Commission of 1905-9, and the Liberal reforms.

MO3317  A 'Struggle for Mastery in Europe'? German Foreign Policy from Bismarck to Hitler, 1871-1939

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2

Description: "What is wrong with Germany" A.J.P. Taylor observed, "is that there is too much of it." After two World Wars, it seemed that ever since 1871 the German Reich had threatened European peace. Recent research, however, has emphasised the ambiguity of Germany's role in international politics. This module traces German foreign policy from the Bismarck and Wilhelmine periods through World War One and the inter-war years to the outbreak of World War Two. While focusing on the major foreign-political developments, the course also considers the instruments of German foreign policy; the social, economic and cultural forces influencing it; and historiographical debates which have arisen over it.

MO3318  Revolutions, Nationalism and Reaction: 1848-1849 in the German Lands

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1

Description: Contemporaries called it the ‘Crazy Year’. After decades of governmental oppression, the revolutions of 1848 threw Germany into an intoxicating period of liberty and change. German society underwent a process of political mobilisation. Peasants, craftsmen, workers, liberals, radicals, nationalists, Catholics, Protestants, jews, even women and proto-imperialists set about addressing their grievances. In order to establish new rights and institutions they utilised a wide spectrum of political means, ranging from riots to elected constituent assemblies. Their objectives were similarly heterogeneous. Peasants near Magdeburg demanded more pasture for their geese; the deputies of the Frankfurt Parliament tried to create a constitutional nation state. This module will try to draw an analytical portrait of the origins, events and consequences of seventeen dazzling, dramatic, momentous months in German history.

MO3319 'Power without Responsibility'? The Press and British Politics, 1850 - 1939

Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1

Description: This module will examine the role of the press in the developing political culture in Britain from the mid-19th century to the coming of the Second World War. In this period the British press is widely believed to have exercised a degree of political influence not seen either before or since. The module will evaluate the formulation and construction of new political, social and cultural concepts during a period of rapid and continuous change. In part this was the result of fundamental changes transforming society and the economy such as the rise of assertive imperialism, the growth of universal franchise and literacy, the impact of the First World War, long term economic decline, and changing attitudes toward the people - the reading, voting and consuming public. These changes acted simultaneously on the media and political worlds and necessitated reciprocal adjustment by both. Other changes, such as innovations in communication technology, impacted primarily upon the media and were responsible for changes in political practice.

MO3320 Imperialism and Nationalism: The British Empire in India 1857 - 1947

Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2

Description: This module will focus on "the Jewel in the Crown" - Britain's empire in India. The aim is to provide both an overall view and understanding of the development of the Raj as well as more in-depth knowledge and appreciation of select key issues, events and personalities. The Years of direct British rule from 1858 to Independence in 1947 with the partition of the sub-continent into India and Pakistan, will be studied through an examination of rebellion and revolt in the mid 19th century, consolidation of imperial power through strategies of coercion and collaboration, the rise and growth of an Indian nationalist movement from the late 19th century; the impact of two World Wars, economic costs and benefits of empire, the role of Gandhi and the ideology of non-violent protest, religion and politics - the growth of Muslim separatism and the trauma and bloodshed of Partition.

MO3321 Russia – Real and Imagined: Ideas, Identity, and Culture (1800-2000)

Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2

Description: Situated on the borders of Europe and Asia, Russia has always been an enigma for Western observers and scholars, by turns inspiring admiration as the exotic 'other', and discomfort as the untamed brutish bear. Yet, this conflicting ‘sacred/profane’ image has been as much a part of intellectual rhetoric in Russia itself, as it has been the cause for divided opinion abroad. As Russian intellectuals thought about their country’s cultural (and spiritual) development, past and present, they often did so ‘under Western eyes’. Whether critical or indulgent, their views testify to complex inter-relations with European neighbours. With this in mind, we shall explore a number of leitmotifs in Russian intellectual culture, together with the contexts in which these were first elaborated. In addition, we shall identify instances of their recurrence as a ‘resource’ in late and post-Soviet endeavours to re-articulate the ‘authentic’ nature of Russian culture.

MO3413  British Society between the Wars, 1919-1939
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Description: This survey of British social history between the two world wars examines a range of issues, including: demographic change and the structure of the family, health and living standards, employment and unemployment, wealth distribution and the class structure, housing conditions, changing leisure pursuits, crime and religion. It also considers the experience of specific groups in society, particularly women, the young and the elderly. In general, it attempts some reconciliation of conflicting images of this era as, on the one hand, one of mass unemployment and poverty and, on the other, of increasing affluence and buoyant consumerism.

MO3417  Britain and the “German Problem”, 1914 - 1939
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Description: This module explores British foreign policy regarding the ‘problem’ of Germany from the First World War to the failure of appeasement in 1939. The main focus is to analyse why the 1919 Peace Settlement failed to provide lasting stability and security in Europe and to evaluate the failure of Britain and the other major powers (particularly France and the US) either to contain or adequately reintegrate Germany during the 1920s. The legacy of these events is then discussed as the module moves to the developments in the 1930s, in particular the foreign policy of Nazi Germany and the response to appeasement.

MO3511  Gender in Twentieth-Century America
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Description: This module analyses the evolution of gender roles in the United States during the twentieth century. It focuses on the way that major events such as the New Deal, World War Two and the Cold War changed the lives of men and women in the home, in politics and in the workplace. Attention is also devoted to the interaction of gender roles with class, ethnicity and race. Although the focus is primarily on the experiences of women, the module also explores the way that changes in women’s lives affected men.

MO3513  Heavenly Decade: The 1960s
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Description: This module will concern itself with the ‘Sixties experience’ as a worldwide phenomenon. The culture of ‘sex, drugs and rock and roll’ affected youth around the world. Social conventions were torn down in the frenzied obsession with rebellion and the ‘counterculture’. But there was also a majority who neither tuned in, turned on, nor dropped out - youths who deplored the drug culture, held sex sacred, and preferred the Beatles to the Rolling Stones. The module will examine the links between countercultural movements in Berkeley, Berlin, Parish, Mexico City and elsewhere. Due primarily to the availability of sources the module will have an American bias, but there will be sufficient exploration of youth movements in other countries to provide an illuminating cross-cultural perspective. The module will also explore whether the heavenly decade was mainly myth, important more in retrospect that at the time.

MO3514  The Life and Times of the Atom Bomb
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Anti-requisite: IR3010
Description: The module examines the period from 1900 to the present day not from the point of view of a single nation but from the vantage point of a single, catastrophic weapon. It combines science with politics, diplomacy, culture and social history. The first few sessions will concentrate on the development of the bomb and its effect upon the scientific community. We will then move to the use of the bomb in 1945, the development of more powerful weapons and the effect of these on Cold War relations. The module also examines how the bomb affected the lives of ordinary people, particularly in the areas of civil defence, peace movements, and popular culture.

MO4902  International Calvinism, 1540-1600
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Anti-requisites: MO3011, MO3902
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: This module provides detailed examination of the growth of Calvinism and its relationship with the political and religious struggles of the second half of the sixteenth century. The course covers Calvin in Geneva, the French Wars of Religion and the Dutch Revolt, along with other comparisons where appropriate. All documents are in translation, and no foreign languages are required.

MO4903  The Catholic Reformation, 1414-1650
Credits:  60.0  Semester:  Whole Year
Availability:  Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description:  This module offers a study of the variety of reform movements which sprang up within the Catholic Church in the late Mediaeval and Early Modern periods. Through an examination of a rich variety of sources, the course will examine, among other themes, the power struggles of the fifteenth century, the relationship between the Renaissance and religion, missions in the New World, the Inquisition and the tension between Tridentine Catholicism and the intellectual world of the seventeenth century. Students will consider the bonds between belief, politics and culture in the Early Modern period.

MO4904  Madness and its Social Milieu in Britain, 1560-1820
Credits:  60.0  Semester:  Whole Year
Availability:  Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description:  Madness is a source of fascination and dread in the modern world. The period between the end of the middle ages and the early years of the nineteenth century is seen as particularly important in forming our attitudes: because of changing understandings of and attitudes to insanity; and because of new types of care such as the origins of the asylum movement. In addition, analysing perceptions of mad behaviour allows unique insights to be gained into the social and cultural priorities of the sane. The module will allow students to use original documents to examine British society from an unusual perspective and to gain unique insights into the mental world of early modern people. In addition to the skills of critical reading, and documentary analysis, it will encourage an interdisciplinary and comparative approach, and will introduce students to quantitative research methodologies.

MO4906  From Mediaeval Manuscript to the Internet. A short History of Communication
Credits:  60.0  Semester:  Whole Year
Availability:  Available only to students in the second year of the Honours Programme.
Anti-requisite:  MO3024
Description:  In a wide ranging investigation of the culture of print, this module will chart the evolution of the book from its beginnings in the monastic scriptorium to the mass, multi-media world of the present. It will demonstrate that in the intervening five centuries the book has shown itself to be a flexible and infinitely adaptable medium: this has been the key to its success, and its survival. In this context it will investigate the future of the book: in the age of information technology, has the book had its day? Or will the twenty-first century be the last great age of the culture of print?

MO4907 Travellers and their Tales in Early America, 1550-1850

Credits: 60.0
Semester: Whole Year

Availability: Available only to students in the second year of the Honours Programme.

Description: This module will examine travellers’ accounts of North America and its people. In examining these tales – penned by men and women from Europe, Africa, and the Americas – we will understand more about the ways in which people from various distinct cultures understood and interacted with each other in the early American landscape. From early explorers’ accounts to captivity narratives to natural histories to plantation visits, we will delve into the worlds observed and captured by newcomers and sojourners. We will thus witness the myths and realities that helped to create and sustain a new world and a new nation.

MO4912 French Absolutism: Richelieu to Louis XIV

Credits: 60.0
Semester: Whole Year

Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.

Description: This course studies the growth of the administrative state in France between the 1630s and the 1680s. It examines the traditional mechanisms of government and their replacement after the mid-1630s by a streamlined central administration and by the provincial intendants, and then studies the struggle between the new state machinery and the earlier influential social groups. The theory and practice of absolutism and the wider impact on these changes are also examined. French is not required.

MO4921 Britain and its Empire in the Age of the Consumer Revolution, 1660-1820

Credits: 60.0
Semester: Whole Year

Availability: Available only to students in the second year of the Honours Programme.

Description: This module will explore modern society’s first ‘consumer revolution’; that which gripped Britain and its American colonies from the late seventeenth century onwards. Themes include private consumers, manufacturers, the landscape and the town, and commercialisation. We will be investigating the role of fashion, mass-production techniques, innovation, the creation and expansion of markets and distribution networks, and questions of taste, style, emulation and class. Often, these phenomena have been addressed only from the point of view of leading industrialists and aristocratic consumers. However, as well as focussing on these figures, this course will also devote significant attention to the experience of small producers and lower class consumers during the period.

MO4933 Britain and the Scramble for Africa, 1865-1904

Credits: 60.0
Semester: Whole Year

Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.

Description: Between the mid 1860s and 1900 Britain increased its African empire thirty-fold, to encompass nearly a third of the continent and half its population. This module examines a number of major themes in late nineteenth-century British imperialism, with particular respect to the European ‘Scramble for Africa’, including: domestic politics and the empire; ‘jingoism’ and the popular culture of imperialism; the influence of businessmen and financiers upon imperial policy; technology and imperialism, including the impact of advances in European weaponry; the role of explorers and missionaries in colonial expansion; and the impact of empire upon indigenous populations, such as the Zulu nation. A specific focus of attention is the history of imperial expansion in southern Africa, as reflected in the careers of men like Cecil Rhodes and Alfred Milner, and in the events leading to the Anglo-Boer War of 1899-1902.

MO4934  Women, War and Peace

Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: This module will examine the experiences of women in industrialised war, the effect of war upon gender issues, and women’s contribution to peace movements. It will focus mainly upon wars since 1870, but will not be restricted to geographical area. The aim of the module will be to understand how women are affected by war, the contributions they have made and how war experiences and peace campaigns have shaped gender identity. Topics will include the eroticism of war, issues of motherhood, the combat exclusion, the masculinity of war, the femininity of peace, emancipation through participation, etc.

MO4936  Bismarck: Biography – Politics – Mythology

Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the second year of the Honours Programme.
Description: A celebrated recent history of German accorded Otto von Bismarck almost biblical status. The book opens with a thunderous: 'In the beginning was Bismarck’. An opinion poll published by the ‘Berlin Illustrated News’ in 1899 declared him the greatest statesman of the century. This module aims to approach, understand and evaluate the life, career and personality of this alleged giant. Scrutinising a large selection of primary sources and drawing on a rich body of sophisticated secondary literature, we will try to appreciate Bismarck both as a shaper and a product of his time. Consideration will also be given to Bismarck’s legacy in European and German politics as well as his role and function in the pantheon of Germany’s political iconography.

MO4937  Charles Darwin and the Politics of Progress

Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: The nineteenth century was the self-proclaimed age of progress. Consequently, it was an age obsessed with time, an age obsessed with origins. And just as human experience – human perfectibility – had become historicized, so too had nature. Natural history had become the history of nature. Drawing upon the rich primary and secondary sources generated by the ‘Darwin industry’, this module examines progressive developmentalism and evolutionary theories in the nineteenth century. Specifically, it considers the religious, political, and social implications of a belief in a constantly changing world, governed by natural laws. As current commentators fight for possession of “Darwinism”, it seems timely to assess the historical context and legacy of Charles Darwin.

MO4944 The Diplomatic Prelude to the Second World War
Credits: 60.0 Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: The causes of the war are traced through the shortcomings of the Versailles settlement of 1919, the development of totalitarianism in Mussolini’s Italy, Hitler’s Germany and Stalin’s USSR, and the inadequacy of the British and French responses to this challenge, culminating in the Munich Agreement. Ideological, political, social and economic factors are analysed alongside those of foreign policy developments. The documents cover the crisis years of 1938 and 1939.

MO4945 The Promised Lands: Great Britain and the Arabs, 1914-1923
Credits: 60.0 Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: Israel and most Arab states in the modern Middle East owe their separate existence to the defeat of the Ottoman Empire by European powers in the First World War. This course examines the Ottoman defeat, the dismantling of the empire in the post-war peace treaties, and the political reconstruction of the Middle East by the victorious Europeans. It explores the motives and objectives of the British Empire and its ally France in this process, and those of Arab nationalists whom the allied victory also brought to prominence. It examines critically the value judgements found in historians’ attitudes to both European imperialism and Arab nationalism, and in particular the controversy over Great Britain’s wartime promises to the Arabs, and its support for Zionist settlement in Palestine.

MO4947 History and Historians in Twentieth-Century Britain
Credits: 60.0 Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: This thematised Special Subject explores the historiographical currents and major texts that have formed the context within which British historians have worked in the twentieth-century. The study is not confined to formal treatises but includes writing about the nature of history and fictional representations of the past. In the case of a historiographical study, the primary sources (mandatory for a Special Subject) also include sources categorised as secondary for other purposes. They will constitute a “bank” of prescribed texts, a subset of which will be used in any one year.

MO4948 France and the World, 1940 - 1995
Credits: 60.0 Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.
Description: This module examines France’s attempts to project its influence and safeguard its interests in world politics in an era in which it suffered considerable blows to its prestige through the defeat and division of World War 2, the end of its colonial Empire and the rise of the superpowers. Through study of primary sources, themes of change and continuity will be examined across France’s attempts to adapt to a rapidly changing international situation while preserving its goals of independence and leadership. France’s international policies and positions will also be compared to those of other European and world powers.

MO4955  History at the Movies: The Early Modern Years
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: Consult School - Available only to students in the second year of the Honours Programme.
Description: Films are the most important medium by which the general public is confronted by History and arguably film directors and actors are as important in shaping how the general public interprets the past as professional historians. It is, therefore, important that historians engage with this powerful mass media. It is the purpose of this module to broaden the intellectual experience of history students by confronting them with representations of the past that lie beyond written record and interpretation. The objective of this module is to ask searching questions about the relationship between the cinema and history by examining films set in the period c. 1500 to c 1789, thus providing students with the critical apparatus to read historical movies.

MO4998  Senior Honours Project
Credits: 30.0  Semester: Either
Prerequisites: Available only to students in the Second year of the Honours Programme.
Anti-requisite: MO3998
Description: This module provides the framework for a project designed to encourage the development of skills of historical analysis through concentrated study of a topic chosen by the student. The project will generally take the form of a bibliographical essay or a primary research on a narrowly defined topic, but the project guidelines are sufficiently flexible to accommodate new developments in learning and information dissemination, such as the production of a website, film, oral history etc. Group projects will also be encouraged. The final project will be assessed on the quality of the research and analysis, and on the oral presentation of the findings to other students and the tutor. All topics must be approved by the Head of Department.

SC3024 Plantagenet and Bruce: The Struggle for Dominance in the British Isles, 1250-1340

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2003-04
Description: Between 1250 and 1340 the peoples of England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland experienced a period of massive upheaval as rival rulers sought to redraw the political map of the British Isles. The wars of conquest launched by Edward I against the principality of Wales and the kingdom of Scots, the war of resistance waged by the Scots against the Plantagenet kings and the war of aggression waged by Robert Bruce in Ireland and northern England formed a series of interlinked conflicts which violently altered relations between the peoples of the British Isles. Using contemporary records, chronicles and verse, the course and character of this warfare will be examined, both as a product of ambitious rulers and as the first clash of national communities within these islands.

Class Hour: 3.00 – 5.00 pm Thursday.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar.

SC3025 The Castle in Medieval Scotland 1100-1550

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Availability: Not available 2003-04
Description: Castles remain the most impressive physical reminders of Scotland’s medieval past. The great royal fortresses of Edinburgh and Stirling provide symbols of Scotland’s past nationhood; the ruined walls and towers of baronial castles demonstrate the power and pretensions of the great lords of the middle ages. As military strongholds, centres of government and lordship, and residences of royal and aristocratic households, these castles give access to the main themes of medieval Scottish politics and society. This module will study the castle in its context. The changing needs of military and domestic architecture in response to the needs of war and peace, the siting of castles and their use in wider structures of authority from Lothian and the marches to the Hebrides, and their role in warfare, as places of refuge and as bases for garrisons, will all be considered. Architectural and archaeological evidence will be combined with descriptions of the Scottish castle in chronicles and record sources to obtain a full understanding of the buildings and their functions.

Class Hour: 11.00 am – 1.00 pm Friday.
Teaching: One 2 hour seminar. One field trip.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 3 Hour Examination = 60%

SC3026 Normans, Natives and Norsemen: Scotland c. 1050 - 1250

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: Not available 2003-04
Description: This module explores the creation of the Scottish kingdom in the eleventh to twelfth centuries. The period sees the institutional and territorial unification of the mainland territories of the kingdom, a process which was a prerequisite for the development of the durable identity which was to preserve the nation not simply through the Wars of Independence but also through subsequent periods of Union with England. The course will be structured thematically rather than chronologically looking at the cultural and political development of the kingdom. In the first part of the course the themes investigated will primarily be discrete areas of cultural and institutional development. In the second part we shall work through the different frontiers of the kingdom in turn (South, West, North and East).

SC3037 Women and the Family in Scotland and Europe, c1500 – c1700
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2003-04
Description: The relegation of women to the private sphere has made them largely invisible to historians, but within their domestic roles women exercised significant influence. Indeed some women held positions of real authority as a result of their social standing. This module examines the extent to which women could exert power through their kin relations, and how their status and influence within the family changed through time. The roles of women will be examined in the context of the changing political environment of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, as well as how, and in what ways, attitudes to women changed.

SC3039 Scotland’s ‘Highland Problem’?: crown-clan relations in the Sixteenth Century
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Availability: 2003-04
Description: Scottish historiography has isolated much of Highland history from that of the Lowlands; something that this course seeks to re-address by highlighting the Highlands as an integral part of Scottish society, while addressing how the region was perceived by contemporaries. It will examine the nature of clan society, clan warfare, and crown-clan relations within the wider context of the forfeit, and repercussions, of the Lordship of the Isles. Students will also evaluate the extent to which there was a division in Scottish society between the Highlands and the Lowlands, and how the crown's perception of a 'Highland problem' affected its policies towards the region, particularly during the reign of James VI and his attempts to 'civilize' Highland society in light of the emerging 'British' dimension.

SC4107  Conflict and Cohabitation: Northern Britain c.550 - 750
Credits: 60.0  Semester: Whole Year
Availability: 2003-04. Available only to students in the second year of the Honours Programme
Description: In the decades around AD700 a number of northern writers, notably Adomnán of Iona (†704) and Bede of Monkwearmouth-Jarrow (†735), looked back on the history of their region. Their historical horizons, for different reasons, lay in the middle of the sixth century. This course looks at the way their world was created both in terms of the rise of the Christian Church as a force to be reckoned with and in the establishment of powerful political hegemonies. Central to the course will be an attempt to grasp the interaction between the different peoples, Britons, Picts, Angles and Gaels.

SC4110 The Bruce Cause: The Making of Late Mediaeval Scotland
Credits: 60.0 Semester: Whole Year
Description: From the fourteenth century onwards Robert Bruce has been identified as the champion of the Scottish People against English domination. The Bruce cause, the survival and defence of Robert’s dynasty as kings of Scots, has been equated with the National cause, the liberties and independence of the realm and community of Scotland. However, this association of dynasty and nation was neither automatic nor immediate. It was only with the state-sponsored composition of Barbour’s epic poem The Bruce in the 1370s that Bruce’s historical reputation and political legacy were secured. This module examines this reputation and legacy by examining in depth the rise and survival of the Bruce dynasty between 1306 and 1371. Themes to be considered will be the presentation of rights and duties of both king and people in contemporary sources, the emergence of a nobility dominated by men bound to the Bruce cause, and the character of relations with England.
Class Hour: 9.30 am - 12.30 pm Wednesday.
Teaching: One 3 hour meeting.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, Two 3 Hour Examinations = 60%
