Modules

Normally the prerequisite for each of the following Honours modules is entry to the Honours Programme(s) for which they are specified, as well as any additional specific prerequisite(s) given.

General degree students wishing to enter 3000 modules and non-graduating students wishing to enter 3000 or 4000 level modules must consult with the relevant Honours Adviser within the School before making their selection.

Ancient History (AN) Modules

AN3020 Principles and Techniques in Archaeology
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Prerequisite: Entry to Honours Archaeology and Ancient History or Honours Mediaeval History and Archaeology, or Honours Divinity or Honours Biblical Studies
Anti-requisite: AN3034
Description: This module is divided into two sections. The first is a series of seminars and lectures on the central practical concerns of archaeology: the way in which the type of excavation affects the resulting evidence; methods of studying sites and artefacts; how to publish archaeological material, and the importance of conservation. This will give a general grounding to enable students to understand archaeological reports, and to apply this understanding to other parts of the Honours degree. The second part will address the important contribution of theoretical archaeology to the discipline.
Class Hour: 10.00-11.00 am Tuesday, 2.00 – 4.00 pm Thursday.
Teaching: One lecture and one two-hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

AN3034 Approaches to Ancient History
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Prerequisite: Entry to Honours programme in Ancient History
Anti-requisite: AN3020
Description: What makes an event in history an event? What role does plot play in narrative history? What problems arise from approaching history as 'text'? Do literary texts and sub-literary texts (e.g. inscriptions, papyri, shopping lists) tell the same story? These questions engaged writers of history in Greece and Rome, and continue to engage historians today. This module will examine the role of narrative in ancient history and the theory and practice of historiography in selected Greek and Roman texts. It will also look at the impact of debates in historiography, from the 1960s to the present, on the study of ancient history. Among other topics, the module will focus on time and tense, foresight and hindsight, chaos and plot, and fact and fiction. Students will acquire a broad range of skills that will enable them to read ancient historians closely, critically, and knowingly.
Class Hour: 10.00 – 11.00 am Tuesday, 2.00 - 4.00pm Thursday.
Teaching: One lecture, one two-hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

AN4103 The Late Roman Republic I
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2006-07
Description: The module begins with the tribunician agitation of the mid-second century BC, culminating with the Gracchi. The Roman revolution is sometimes represented as beginning with the Chief Priest of Rome leading the Senators in the murder of a radical tribune, but is this true? Covering the chronological period down to the time of Sulla, the module explores in detail the important themes of the army and the impact of military service, agrarian conditions, and related legislation. We shall study the period using key historical texts of the period, surviving laws, and archaeological evidence. One important aspect is the great conflict between Rome and the Italian allies, and one strand of the module will be the representation of these events in 19th century scholarship, and how that relates to the construction of nations and nationhood.
Class Hour: 9.00-11.00 am Friday
Teaching: One two-hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%
AN4104 The Late Roman Republic II
Credits: 30.0                Semester: 1
Availability: 2005-06
Description: The module focuses on the period of Cicero’s activity as a lawyer and politician. In this module we come closest to the real detail of Roman political life - the plots, the gossip, the dangers. It ends with a discussion of Caesar’s dictatorship and death. Cicero himself follows a trajectory from his salvation of Rome in 63 BC to his bitter exile, triumphant return, and general disillusionment. The module considers the importance of oratory and the ways in which the people expressed their views in the Late Republic; a key theme is the current debate over the nature of the Roman political system, and the intellectual tradition of a central period of ancient history.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One two-hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

AN4107 Triumph of Christianity
Credits: 30.0                Semester: 2
Availability: 2006-07
Description: This module covers the history of the Roman empire in the fourth century AD from the conversion of Constantine to Christianity in AD 312 to the final acceptance of Christianity as the dominant religion of the empire at the end of the century. The module covers not only religious history - conflict with paganism, Church and city structures and competing forms of holiness - but also the role of emperors, social and political developments and relations with external powers.
Class Hour: 10.00 am Tuesday, 9.00 – 11.00 am Friday.
Teaching: One lecture and one seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

AN4108 The Disintegration of the Roman Empire
Credits: 30.0                Semester: 2
Availability: 2005-06
Description: This module examines the transformation of the Roman empire from a political unity extending from Britain to the Euphrates into a collection of independent kingdoms under Germanic rulers covering Western Europe, while the East remained united under an emperor based at Constantinople. It studies administrative structures, the societies and economies of city and country and the supposed internal problems of the empire. The second part analyses military problems, federates and the rise of the independent kingdoms in the fifth century AD.
Class Hour: 2.00 - 4.00 pm Tuesday
Teaching: One seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

AN4121 The Ancient City of Rome
Credits: 30.0                Semester: 2
Availability: 2006-07
Description: This module examines the history and archaeology of the city of Rome from its earliest beginnings to the 5th century AD. Several themes are pursued through, in particular the view of Rome as a centre of power and patronage, the capital of empire and residence of kings and emperors. Rome’s physical development, the problems of feeding and administering such an immense ancient city, the architectural and artistic implications of rulers’ aspirations, and the urban religions are all explored.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One two-hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%
AN4123 Democracy and Empire. Athens in the Fifth Century
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Availability: 2005-06
Description: This module aims to study the evolution of classical Athens in the fifth century both as a state and as a society, integrating political, social and economic aspects, and relating internal developments to external history. Topics discussed will include the development and working of the Athenian democracy; the growth and character of Athens’ empire in the East Mediterranean world; the impact it had on Athens internally; and the complex and varied social and economic developments that accompanied the rise of democracy and empire. Close use will be made throughout of prescribed literary sources and documents in translation. The module will also develop as a theme the way in which the Athenian political experiment has influenced modern thought from the founders of the American constitution to the present day.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One two-hour seminar
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

AN4128 Roman Leisure
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Availability: 2006-07
Description: This module will deal with collective 'public' leisure activities such as spectacula and circenses, and also with leisure activities in the private sphere including dining and bathing. That division is purely convenient and activities like gambling and feasting as well as the public ramifications of the private pleasures of emperors reveal the difficulties of insisting on a rigid division between public and private. Students will be encouraged to decide what the term 'leisure' might mean, with reference to the study of its use in history writing from Veblen to Plumb and beyond, and with reference to the semantic range of Roman terms such as otium. Roman leisure will be set in its political, social and religious contexts. Leisure will also be used as a means of revisiting familiar topics such as cultural difference, through study of the spread of bathing, gymnasia and gladiatorial games and also social cohesion through examination of patterns of segregation and participation in collective leisure.
Class Hour: 10.00 - 11.00 am Tuesday, 9.00 - 11.00 am Thursday
Teaching: One lecture and one seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

AN4129 Crime and Society in Ancient Rome
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1
Availability: not available 2005-06
Description: This module will cover a variety of anti-social and criminal activities under the Roman Republic and Empire. Attention is given to the changing relationship of the state with the citizen as expressed in the evolving law of treason under the Empire, and in the state’s attitude to sexual crime and to sacrilege. Theories of punishment are considered alongside the application of penal policy by the state, as also is imprisonment, martyrdom and ideologies of opposition.
Class Hour: 12.00 noon Tuesday, 9.00 – 11.00 am Thursday.
Teaching: One lecture and one seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%
AN4130 The Roman Army
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Availability: 2006-07
Description: This module will present material for the history and archaeology of the Roman army from the Early Republic through to the Late Empire. Students will study a series of themes, including institutional development, expansion and defence of the Roman empire, the army and political culture, the army in battle, soldiers within Roman society, the archaeology of self-identity, and the Roman military economy. Source material will include historical and epigraphic texts, archaeological sites and finds, and Roman iconography. The Roman army was the first truly ‘professional’ standing army in European history. It permeated Roman economy and society, and has subsequently fascinated historians, soldiers, political scientists and artists up to the present.
Class Hour: 2.00 – 4.00 pm Friday
Teaching: One two-hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

AN4131 The Roman Economy
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2005-06
Description: This module looks at the material base of life in Italy and the provinces during the Roman empire, roughly the first three centuries C.E. Using archaeological material such as ship wrecks, surface survey and studies of container amphorae, combined with inscriptions, papyri and literary texts, the course aims through a series of case studies to build up a picture of how wealth was created, how goods were produced and transported around the empire and the impact on local societies and peasants of the economic demands of empire and city, landowner and soldier.
Class Hour: 2.00 – 4.00 pm Thursday.
Teaching: One lecture and one seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

AN4132 Archaic Greece
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Availability: 2006-07
Description: This module deals with the origins of the Greek city state, with the period that saw the beginnings of Greek literacy and literature, of Greek cities and Greek architecture, of Greek societies and in short Greek civilisation. No contemporary history survives of the period, but it is rich in archaeological material, much of it the subject of impressive recent analysis, and a great deal of poetry survives that deals with, among other things, warfare and love, democrats and tyrants, athletics and other religion. The module is designed to allow students to explore this key period through a combination of archaeology and history and to get involved in the current arguments about why ancient Greek civilisation began the way it did.
Class Hour: 9.00 - 11.00 am Tuesday.
Teaching: One two-hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%
AN4133 Greece under Roman Rule
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1
Availability: 2005-06
Description: This module deals with the culture and society of Greece during the period in which it formed part of the Roman empire. Through a wide range of literary sources (philosophical, humorous, devotional); through the Roman period monuments of Greece; through inscriptions recording Greek efforts to remodel their collective identity to win favour from the empire, and the efforts of emperors to control Greek culture, it will be possible to see Roman imperialism through the eyes of its subjects and to trace the story of Greek civilization as it entered a long period of foreign rule. The module will explore how Greek cities exploited their past history and present cultural prestige to seduce emperors like Nero and Hadrian, to attract Roman tourists and to continue their rivalries with each other by other means now that Roman Peace had deprived them of the freedom to engage in inter-city warfare. In addition, archaeological field survey and excavations in the major urban centres shows how the social structure and economy of the region and its cultic life was transformed by Roman imperialism as city states were converted into provincial towns.

AN4136 Alexander the Great
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Availability: 2005-06
Description: Alexander the Great’s life and career have exercised an enormous influence - both on the subsequent history of the Hellenistic and Roman worlds, and on the later imagination of artists and writers. This module will ask how much we can really know of Alexander’s aims and career, through detailed examination both of the sources for his life and their literary and historiographical models. Topics will include: the origins of ruler cult, Alexander’s army and the battles of his campaign, his alleged attempt to fuse east and west and other ‘last plans’. The module will look, finally, at some of the modern representations of Alexander - in scholarship, film and literature.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One seminar
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

AN4141 Classical Greek Tyranny
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1
Availability: 2006-07
Description: Why were ambitious and wealthy men and women able to seize power in classical Greek states? Why did so many states turn their backs on democracy in the fourth century and choose monarchical rule instead? Using the works of Plato, Aristotle, Xenophon and Diodorus, this module examines the tyrant dynasties of the classical period, and attempts to explain the political, social and economic factors that led to a resurgence of tyranny at this time. It also documents the response of Greek political thinkers to these events, and challenges traditional interpretations of the resurgence of tyranny, and its place in the history of the Greek polis.
Class Hour: 9.00 – 11.00 am Wednesday.
Teaching: One two-hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%
AN4142 Greek Painted Pottery
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Availability: 2006-07
Description: Greek Painted Pottery offers students the chance to study the ceramic art of Greece, and to examine modern interpretations of this material. The first four seminars provide a survey of the major styles of painted pottery in Greece, primarily in Athens, and their development from Geometric to the late red-figure period (750 – 300 BCE). This includes the history of the scholarship of Greek pottery, and study of the main themes depicted in the iconography. In the second part of the module student apply this basic knowledge to explore the differing modern approaches to pottery (art historical, archaeological, structuralist), and the debates between their practitioners. Case studies of particular themes are used to demonstrate the assumptions that underlie scholars’ use of the evidence of pottery, and to suggest ways in which the images and their context can usefully comment on Greek society.
Class Hour: 9.00 – 11.00 am Thursday.

AN4143 Religions of the Greeks
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Availability: 2006-07
Description: This module will examine the range of religious practice and experience in Greece primarily between ca 500 and ca 300 BCE. The civic and political roles of religion will be considered, both on the level of the city and on the wider regional or ‘national’ level, as will the role of religion in the home and in the life-cycle of the individual. Considerable attention will be paid throughout to questions of method and interpretation, with regard both to the handling of ancient evidence and to the relative merits and demerits of the competing modern approaches. The overall aim is to attempt to understand a key element of ancient Greek mentality.
Class Hour: 9.00 – 11.00 am Wednesday

AN4144 Three Greek Cities: the archaeology and history of Corinth, Messene & Sparta
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1
Availability: 2005-06
Description: For many years Athenian history and culture have dominated the study of Archaic and Classical Greece, often to the detriment of the study of other significant poleis such as Corinth, Sparta and Messene. This module aims to reverse that situation. These three poleis are well documented by Greek historians, and continuing archaeological work (and its publication) has given us a vastly increased understanding of the city sites and their territories. The module studies Corinth, Messene and Sparta from the Geometric period to the sack of Corinth in 146 BCE, engaging with broad themes of political, social and cultural interaction and change.

CL4004 Women in Ancient Societies
Credits: 30 Semester: 1
Availability: 2006-07
Description: This module studies women and gender in Greek cities, including Athens in the fifth century BCE, and in the Roman Republic and Empire from different perspectives. It will consider representations of women, for example, Homer and Virgil; the Greek tragedians; epigraphy and burial monuments; legal and forensic evidence; and medical treatises. It will look at women in the context of ancient families and city communities, marriage, children, ritual and religion and the existence or otherwise of outlets for ‘individual’ fulfilment.

CL4135 Athletics in the Ancient World
Credits: 30 Semester: 1
Availability: 2005-06
Description: Athletics lay at the heart of Greek culture for more than 1000 years. It played a central role within politics and education, art and literature, and formulations of cultural identity within both the Greek and Roman worlds. This module looks at the development of athletic festivals from the early days of the Olympics (founded in 776 BCE) through to the incredible revival of athletic culture in the Roman Empire, when athletic festivals spread more widely across the Mediterranean world than ever before. It looks at the importance of the gymnasium in Greek culture, as one of the main institutions of higher education. It also explores representations of athletes and athletics within a great range of different media, focusing especially on many centuries of athletic sculpture, on inscriptions recording athletic victory; and on literary accounts of athletes – from Pindar’s praise of athletic victors through to the satirical work of Lucian and Galen in the second century CE. There will also be a special focus on the biographies of individual athletes; and on the modern Olympic movement and its changing uses of ancient tradition through the twentieth century.

CL4403 Greco-Roman Comic Drama
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Availability: 2006-07
Anti-requisites: GK4103, LT4207
Description: The aim of this module is to survey developments in ancient comedy from the fifth century BC to the first century AD, concentrating on the manner and directions of its development, its characteristic qualities, and its cultural importance. Two plays each of Aristophanes, Menander, Plautus and Terence are studied in English translation.

CL4407 Art of the Roman Empire

Credits: 30.0
Semester: 2
Availability: 2005-06
Prerequisite: Admission to Honours in Classical Studies, Art History, Ancient History or History.
Description: This module will examine the art of Italy and the provinces of the Roman Empire between the last century BC and the fourth century AD. It will include consideration of monumental art and also private art in a variety of media such as sculpture, wall paintings and mosaics. The module will look at issues such as the employment of art by the state, at the domestic contexts of art, and the artistic treatment of themes such as myth, historical events, death and sexuality. Special attention will be given to particularly rich case studies including Pompeii, Dura-Europos and Roman Britain.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One two-hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4411 Ancient Science

Credits: 30.0
Semester: 1
Availability: 2005-06
Description: This module studies in depth selected areas of Greek science and their reception in the Roman world. Students will be trained to handle the sources for our knowledge of ancient science, reading prescribed texts in translation, to examine the relationship between pre-scientific and scientific ways of thinking, and to understand the influence of the social and intellectual contexts in which scientific thinking developed.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One two-hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4413 Logos, Nature, and Psyche: the Origins of Western Thought

Credits: 30.0
Semester: 1
Availability: 2006-07
Prerequisite: Entry to any Honours Programme within the Schools of Classics, Divinity or History.
Description: This module will study the central ideas and cultural significance of the major thinkers (including the Milesians, Xenophanes, Heraclitus, Parmenides, Pythagoras, Anaxagoras, Empedocles, and Democritus) from the Presocratic period of Greek thought. Among the concepts and issues that will receive particular attention are: the cosmos as a unified object of understanding; nature as an active system of principles and creative forces; the difference between mythical and rationalistic models of the world; competing paradigms of the physical and metaphysical foundations of reality; the status of human soul/mind, of thought, and of language; the development of human societies and of religious/political/ethical values.
Class Hour: 11.00 am Tuesday, Thursday
Teaching: One seminar, one tutorial.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%
CL4414 Augustine

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Availability: not available 2005-06
Prerequisite: Entry to any Honours Programme within the Schools of Classics, Divinity or History.

Description: This module offers an introduction to one of the most fascinating and influential thinkers of antiquity, including the rich historical context of Augustine's life: his brilliant career as professor turned Imperial panegyricist, his involvement with the dualist Oriental religion of Manichaeism, his attitude to the sectarian conflict between Christian groups in North Africa. The module will also consider Augustine’s thought, and how he attempted to co-opt various aspects of classical thought within a Christian context, as well as some of the continuing relevance of his ideas to a range of modern concerns, from environmentalism and literary theory to sexuality and theories of the State.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two sessions (lectures, seminars or tutorials).
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4415 Images of Nero

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Availability: 2006-07
Prerequisite: Entry to any Honours Programme within the Schools of Classics, Divinity or History.

Description: This module will examine the changing ways in which the emperor Nero, and some of the other leading figures of his reign, have been understood and represented, from his own lifetime (A.D. 37-68) up until the present day. The module will look first at works produced during Nero’s reign and in the generation after his death, next at Nero in later Greek and Roman literature, and then at some of the representations of Nero from the Renaissance to the present day. The principal focus will be on literature, but architecture and the visual arts, opera and film will also be considered, as will scholarly views of Nero. The module will explore the ways in which changing political, social and cultural environments have helped to shape different images of Nero and his court.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two sessions (lectures, seminars or tutorials).
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4416 Responses to War: Civic Drama and Athenian Culture

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2005-06
Prerequisite: Entry to any Honours Programme within the Schools of Classics, Divinity or History.

Description: This module will examine Athenian tragedy and comedy in the light of the fact that they were written for a city which was at war for most of the fifth century. The Athenian dramatic festivals will be contextualised in terms of the identity, duties and values of the Athenian citizen-soldier and his militarised society. The module will focus on plays by Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides and Aristophanes which stage and discuss the effects of war, violence and the nature of justice, military duty and heroism. Students will focus on the language, imagery and stagecraft of these plays and their relationship with earlier poetry at the same time as they set them within the Athenian context. The module will also look at the way in which twentieth century poetry and drama have returned to Greek drama in order to address the contemporary politics of warfare and violence.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two sessions (lectures, seminars or tutorials).
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%
CL4417 Classics and the Discipline of Translation

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2006-07
Prerequisites: Entry to Honours in, or Joint Honours with, Greek, Latin, Classics, Classical Studies, Ancient History, English, or History.

Description: This module will examine translations of a wide range of Greek and Latin texts and will pose challenging questions about the theory and practice of translation. As well as exploring ancient Greek and Roman ideas about translation, invention and originality, the module will also address modern texts which are literary classics in their own right, but which are also in some sense translations/versions/adaptations/imitations of Greek and Roman classics. There will also be an opportunity to study film adaptations of ancient Greek and Roman texts. Students will be encouraged to think about how the difference between source cultures (ancient Greece and Rome in this case) and receiving cultures (the English-speaking world and beyond from the 18th century to the present day in this case) affects the linguistic and literary processes of translation. They will be asked to think about the background of translators and the audiences whom they translate for, and to consider whether successful authors make the best translators. Against the backdrop of debates about what we lose from studying Classics in translation, this module will be alert to what our understanding of the past can gain from theorising the activity of translation.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two seminars.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4418 Eating and Drinking in the Roman World

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2005-06
Prerequisite: Entry to any Honours Programme within the Schools of Classics, Divinity or History.

Description: This module will examine practices of eating and drinking within the Roman World, with special reference to their social significance and literary representation. The module will deal with both Greek and Roman elite banqueting, and with public feasting in the Greek and Roman cities of the Roman Empire, focusing especially on the ways in which distinctive forms of eating and drinking contributed to the self-definition of communities. It will also deal with questions of famine and food supply within the ancient world, with special reference to non-elite eating and drinking. The second half of the module will then draw on that context in looking at representations of eating and drinking in a wide range of literature, both Greek and Latin (including philosophical, satirical, medical and historical writing); and in examining the development of distinctive Christian practices and representations of shared eating and drinking. All of this material will be set against the backdrop of earlier traditions (especially within Classical and Hellenistic Greek society and literature).

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One lecture and one seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4419 Magic in Greco-Roman Literature and Life

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2005-06
Prerequisite: Entry to any Honours Programme within the Schools of Classics, Divinity or History.

Description: This module examines magic and related phenomena in the Greco-Roman world. Attention will be paid both to the fascination with magic in literature and to magical beliefs and practices in real life, not just practices to which the ancient writers themselves apply the word ‘magic’ or similar terms, but also features of conventional religion, public and private, that some modern scholars have regarded as magical. This will require examination of the problems of defining magic, sorcery, witchcraft, and the like, and of distinguishing them from religion. Students will study - in English translation - both literary texts (from Homer to Apuleius and beyond) and documentary and archaeological evidence (including magical papyri and curse tablets).

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%
CL4420 Fame, Tradition and Narrative: Homer’s Iliad

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2006-07
Description: This module will give students the opportunity to study Homer’s celebrated martial epic, the Iliad, in translation and in detail. It will consider the relevant social and cultural-historical questions which are prompted by this tale of heroic savagery and suffering: why might archaic Greeks have needed an epic like this? Why is the Homeric conception of the heroic so fraught with conflict and so obsessed with honour, memory and power? The module will also analyze and interpret the epic’s rich poetic texture and ‘oral-derived’ style (formulae, similes, type-scenes…); it will explore the character of its heroes and their relationship with divinity. For all its depictions of battle and slaughter the Iliad is a poem about language as much as action and participants will consider the complex rhetoric of heroes who fight with words as well as swords. Finally, the module will ask how and why famous artists and poets of the modern era have returned to the Iliad’s ideas and imagery. The module could be usefully combined with CL4416 Responses to War: Civic Drama and Athenian Culture.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One seminar and occasional lectures
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4421 The Ancient and Modern Novel

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Availability: 2006-07
Description: The formation of the modern novel has a long (and still often unacknowledged) tradition of ancient novel-writing lying behind it. This module examines the seven surviving Greek and Latin novels of the Roman period (and their many fragmentary counterparts), with their brilliant and challenging stories of sex, magic, adventure, passion and everyday life. It looks at the emergence of the genre against the background of earlier literature, and views the novels within their social and cultural contexts. It also analyses the reception of ancient novel traditions within a wide range of post-classical contexts up to the present day (focusing mainly on modern novels, but also on film); and asks how they relate to novel-writing in the modern world.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One two-hour seminar
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4423 Livy and the Invention of Rome from Antiquity to the Enlightenment

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Availability: 2006-07
Anti-requisite: CL4405
Description: More of Livy survives than of any other classical Latin historian. The books we have range from the semi-legendary accounts of Aeneas and Romulus, through the difficult early years of the Republic to the triumphant defeat of Perseus king of Macedonia. Often mined as a historical source, Livy also displayed a remarkable stylistic variety. He is our best guide to understanding the Roman historical tradition, and gives a unique insight into the way in which Roman history was perceived. This module will consider Livy’s predecessors, his account of Rome, his reception in antiquity, and how his work survived and was used in the Renaissance and afterwards.

Class Hour: 9.00 – 11.00 am Friday.
Teaching: One seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%
CL4424 Classical Temple to Christian Basilica: Development of religious architecture in Greece
Credits: 30.0
Availability: 2006-07
Prerequisite: Entry to Honours programmes in the School of Classics or Divinity or to the History Degree.
Description: This module takes a broad approach to the study of Greece from the Classical to Early Christian periods. Within a historical framework it aims to illustrate how religious architecture (temples, sanctuaries, basilicas and monasteries) can be used to study key changes in Greek society and politics. The module will examine religious architecture and interior decoration and then apply an architectural study of its function to discover more about the nature of the liturgy and the people involved in it. Using historical sources in combination with the study of particular sites such as Athens, Delphi, Corinth and Sparta the following themes will be a focus: Architecture as propaganda, effects of Hellenic expansion, Romanization and Christianization.
Class Hour: 2.00 - 4.00 pm Thursday.
Teaching: One two-hour seminar
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4425 From private life to public display: the archaeology of the Greek city
Credits: 30.0
Availability: 2005-06
Prerequisite: Entry to Honours Programmes within the School of Classics, Art History, Divinity or the History Degree.
Description: From private life to public display; this module offers the opportunity to study life and death in Greek society through an investigation of its architecture and art. Within the context of different cities such as Athens, Delos, Delphi and Olynthus we will be looking at how the private domains such as the domus and taverna and the more public venues of temples and civic buildings can provide an insight into social themes concerning everyday life (including high life and low life), religious practice and political maneuvers. Material culture such as burial, pottery, mosaic, sculpture and wall painting will be examined to provide further clues as to the nature of the people who made Greek society. Questions such as whether art and architecture reflect the function of space, whether pottery can be considered a blueprint of daily life, to what extent Greek cities can be considered homogenous and how art and architecture reflect socio-political change will form the backdrop to the discussion of the visual material. Largely focusing on the 5th and 4th centuries, set within a historical background, the module will also be concerned with visual sources from the Archaic and Hellenistic periods in order to highlight key developments in Greek culture.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One two-hour seminar
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4426 Geography and Travel Writing in the Ancient World
Credits: 30.0
Availability: not available 2005-06
Description: This module will explore the evolution and different uses made of geography, cartography and travel writing from the poems of Homer to accounts of Christian pilgrimage in the 4th century AD. It is broadly chronological in its structure, but will tackle specific themes along the way, including the organisation of knowledge, the politics of map-making and geographical exploration, geographical and topographical responses to empire, anthropology and ethnography, and the role of fantasy and imagination in ancient travel writing. Wide-ranging in scope, it will balance general overviews with detailed examination of specific case studies, and will bring together material evidence and texts, and little-known authors and some of the canonical “classics”, in order to examine some of the ways in which Greek and Roman writers, thinkers and politicians viewed and tried to structure the worlds in which they – and others beyond their borders – lived.
Class Hour: 11.00 am Tuesday, Thursday.
Teaching: One lecture and one seminar
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%
CL.4427 In the footsteps of the Ancients: exploring the archaeology and topography of Greece
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Availability: 2005-06
Description: Through on-site teaching in Greece and home lectures, this course studies how and why Greek secular and religious sites developed where they did, what their different functions may have been (in relation to architecture/topography), how these changed over time, and what important interactions existed within and between secular and religious sites. On-site teaching will also allow treatment of the nature of site-excavation and its impact on interpretation, as well as development of students’ own interpretations and illustration of contemporary topics such as the values of restoration, conservation and presentation of archaeology. The module will provide a broad yet detailed examination of Greek society and culture from Prehistoric to modern times. There will be 11 days of visits to sites and museums in Athens, Attica, Central Greece and the Peloponnese; these include the Athenian Acropolis and Agora, Delphi, Ossios Loukas, Mycenae, Sparta, Mistras, and Olympia.
Class Hour: 11.00 am Tuesday, 11.00 am Thursday.
Teaching: One lecture and one seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL.4428 Love, Death, and Eternity: Plato’s Philosophical
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1
Availability: not available 2005-06
Description: This module offers intensive study of a series of major (and highly influential) narrative set-pieces in Plato’s dialogues. The texts in question include two very different accounts of the nature of love in the Symposium, the haunting allegory of the Cave in the Republic, the visions of the soul’s immortal destiny in Gorgias, Phaedo, Phaedrus and the Republic, and the story of the lost Atlantis civilisation in Timaeus and Critias. Against the larger background of the multiple uses of myth in Greek culture, these narratives will be investigated as powerful imaginative projections of complex ideas about some fundamental aspects of human existence.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One seminar and one tutorial.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL.4429 Death and Dying in Ancient Greece
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Availability: 2005-06
Description: Two things are said to be inevitable in life: death and taxes. This module will look at the former in the context of the ancient world, an environment in which, for all the cultural achievements for which Greece and Rome are celebrated, mortality rates were, by modern standards, shockingly high. A variety of materials and approaches will be used to look at perceptions, representations and realities of death and dying in antiquity. What constitutes a heroic death, a philosophical death, a pitiable death or an untimely death? How do the varieties of deaths relate to the values of the society at large? What responses to death did the ancient Greeks devise? Was it possible to ‘survive’ death, and if so, in what form? The focus will fall primarily on Greece, but Roman material will be introduced where it is appropriate, as will comparative material from other societies around the world.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%
CL4430 Greek Masculinity

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1

Availability: 2005-06

Description: This module will explore ancient Greek theories and ideologies of what it was to be a man. We will examine the position of men in Greek societies from the eighth to the fourth centuries BC, and the way in which men represented both themselves and other men. As source material, we will draw on Homeric epic, medical texts, philosophical texts, Athenian comedy, Athenian tragedy, history, political and forensic oratory, martial elegy, sculpture, and vase paintings. As well as examining discussions and depictions of men and masculine identities in ancient Greek sources, this module will also engage with the literature of gender studies and contemporary theories of masculinity, ranging from current research on transvestitism, to studies of the psychology of men in combat. As an added twist, this module will be taught by a woman.

Class Hour: To be arranged.

Teaching: One lecture and one seminar.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4431 True Stories. Historical Fiction and the Classics

Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2

Availability: 2006-07

Description: This module examines how novelists from the early Victorian period to the present have used fiction about the ancient world as a locus for discussion of the big issues of their day: imperialism, feminism, Communism, homosexuality, Catholic emancipation… Alongside this we will consider also the sub-genre of the school novel and the evolving image of the classical paedagogue and his pupils. Key texts studied will include Bulwe-Lytton’s Last Days of Pompeii, Kipling’s Stalky and Co., Graves’ Claudius novels, Sutcliff’s The Eagle of the Ninth, and Tartt’s The Secret History. Particular attention will be given to the marginal status of historical fiction in relation to English literary canons.

Class Hour: To be arranged.

Teaching: One lecture and one seminar.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4996 Dissertation (non-graduating)

Credits: 60.0  Semester: Either or Both

Anti-requisite: CL4997

Description: This module is for incoming Exchange and non-graduating students who spend all or part of their time in St Andrews working on dissertations which they will submit in their home university. Such students will receive supervision during their time in St Andrews and may be required to submit samples of written work for informal assessment, but there is no formal assessment in St Andrews.

GK3021 Greek for Honours Classics 1: Special Option
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1
Availability: 2005-06
Prerequisites: pass at grade 11 or better in GK1002 and in LT2004
Anti-requisite: GK2003
Description: This module is for students who, having taken Latin in both of their first two years, but only begun Greek in their second year with GK1001 and GK 1002, are entering Honours Classics in their third year. It consists of 4000-level analysis and essay work together with consolidation of the student’s prior knowledge of the Greek language, practice in translation skills, and training in techniques of literary analysis. The module will concentrate on the study of narrative poetry (e.g. Homer) and prose dialogue (e.g. Lucian) and will aim to foster an awareness of the interrelationships between later and earlier periods of Greek.
Class Hour: 10.00 am 3 days a week (Tues – Fri).
Teaching: Three tutorials per week plus 4 tests over semester.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 2 Hour Examination = 50%

GK3022 Greek for Honours Classics 2: Special Option
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Availability: 2005-06
Prerequisites: pass at grade 11 or better in GK1002 and permission to take Honours in Classics
Anti-requisite: GK2004
Description: This module is for students who, having taken Latin in both of their first two years, but only begun Greek in their second year with GK1001 and GK 1002, are entering Honours Classics in their third year. It consists of 4000-level analysis and essay work together with consolidation of the student’s prior knowledge of the Greek language, practice in translation skills, and training in techniques of literary analysis. The module will concentrate on the study of pastoral poetry (e.g. Theocritus) and erotic fiction (e.g. Longus) and aims to foster an awareness of the ways in which Greek poetry and prose can share language, strategy and themes. It will focus particularly on the Greek literary inheritance and manipulation of bucolic commonsplaces and discourses of desire.
Class Hour: 10.00 am 3 days a week (Tues – Fri).
Teaching: Three tutorials per week plus 4 tests over semester.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 2 Hour Examination = 50%

GK4105 Greek Rhetoric and its Representation

Credits: 30.0
Semester: 1
Availability: 2006-07
Description: This module gives students the opportunity to translate and perform detailed critical analysis of Greek prose texts of the classical period which are concerned with the nature, development and representation of rhetoric and sophistry. It also requires students to address broader questions concerning Athenian culture’s social, moral and political response to the development of an ‘art’ of persuasion.

Class Hour: 2.00 pm Monday, Friday.
Teaching: One seminar and one tutorial/lecture.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

GK4108 Helen of Troy and the Femme Fatale in Archaic and Classical Greek Literature

Credits: 30.0
Semester: 2
Availability: 2005-06
Description: The myth of Helen of Troy has captivated the imagination of poets from Homer to the present day. In addition to being the original siren and femme fatale in European literature, Helen is also the consummate Muse, whose beauty precipitates the Trojan war and Homer’s war epic, the Iliad. Helen is an ambiguous figure in Greek literature and culture, demonized in some contexts and deified in others. This module will pay particular attention to the divergent accounts of Helen’s conduct in Greek literature. Greek poets, philosophers, and historians used the Helen myth to explore issues of causation, agency, motivation, truth, and desire. This module will take an intertextual approach to the myth of Helen of Troy, exploring the way in which Helen is represented across a range of genres in ancient Greece. There will also be scope to look at visual representations of Helen and the relationship between texts and images.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two seminars per week and a fortnightly tutorial.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

GK4109 Greek Literature in the Roman Empire

Credits: 30.0
Semester: 2
Availability: 2006-07
Description: The first to third centuries AD was one of the most fertile periods of Greek literary production (and has been an exciting growth area of recent scholarship). This module samples a range of genres, paying particular attention to detailed appreciation of specific works: the speeches and novelistic dialogues of the controversial and colourful orator/philosopher Dio Chrysostom; the irreverent satirical and comical writing of Lucian; and the works of Philostratus, who offers us such a vivid portrait of his own contemporary culture through his biographical writing. It also addresses a range of broader questions: how far are these texts influenced by their social and political context, especially by the continuing Roman rule over the Greek east? What relation do they have with classical literary traditions which they draw on and transform in such original ways? And how are we to account for the extraordinary denigration of this period's literature within so much of the scholarship of the nineteenth and early-twentieth centuries?

Class Hour: 9.00 am Tuesday, Thursday
Teaching: One seminar and one tutorial
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%
GK4110 Imagining the Symposium
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 2
Availability: 2006-07
Description: This module will explore the symposium, a key cultural institution of the ancient Greek world, through its representation and dramatisation in both poetry and prose. The texts studied, which were produced for performance at symposia and/or designed to evoke the mentality and preoccupations (alcoholic, erotic, political, religious, and cultural) associated with sympotic gatherings, will range from the lyric and elegiac poetry of the archaic period, via the two 'Socratic' Symposia of Plato and Xenophon in the fourth century, to the continued thematisation of the symposium in Hellenistic epigrams. The module will also make some supplementary use of pictorial evidence for the history of the symposium, paying comparative attention to the roles of poetic and visual material within symposiac culture.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One seminar and one tutorial.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

GK4111 Greek Philology and Linguistics
Credits: 30.0  Semester: 1
Availability: 2006-07
Description: This module offers an introduction to the key concepts of historical linguistics – the formal study of language and its development over time – with particular reference to the history of the Greek language, from the Linear B tablets through Homer and the classical period down to the colloquial papyri of the Roman period. The module will consider questions such as the sound-system of Greek, the main dialect groupings, the development of the Greek vocabulary, the relationship of Greek to Indo-European and whether any patterns can be discerned beneath the superficial anarchy of the Greek verbal system.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: Two seminars.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

GK4998 Dissertation in Greek (Long)

LT4209 Latin Historical Writing
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Availability: 2006-07
Anti-requisite: CL4405
Description: This module studies the origins and development of Roman historical writing from the beginnings to the early second century AD. Selected works of Roman historians, and writings about historiography, will be read in Latin. The sources of Roman knowledge of the past, and the influence of Greek historical writing, will be studied, as well as the development of the Roman historiographical tradition, and the styles and techniques of individual writers.
Class Hour: 11.00 am Wednesday and Friday.
Teaching: Two meetings per week, lectures or seminars.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

LT4210 Latin Didactic Poetry
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1
Availability: 2005-06
Description: This module examines the development of one of the major genres of Classical Latin poetry during the late Republic and early Empire, with due consideration of the Hellenistic and archaic Greek background. Three books will be studied with particular attention to their literary form and background, to the didactic poet’s message, and to his self-presentation as an authority and teacher.
Class Hour: 11.00 am Wednesday and Friday.
Teaching: Two meetings per week, lectures or seminars.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

LT4211 Latin Letters
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Availability: 2005-06
Description: This module studies the genre of epistolography through the selected letters of the three Latin writers Cicero, Seneca and Pliny. The aims, methods, style and subject-matter of each writer will be studied and compared, as will their different personal, political and cultural backgrounds. Letters from other authors and periods will be used for comparative purposes.
Class Hour: 11.00 am Tuesday and Thursday.
Teaching: One lecture and one seminar
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

LT4212 Latin Hagiography
Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Availability: 2005-06
Description: The late antique saint’s life is seldom a model of sober reportage. But hagiography – the last great genre of ancient literature – is, in the right hands, a subtle and allusive mode of writing, rich in intertextuality with the pagan classics and the Christian Scriptures. The module will examine a range of texts from the third to the sixth centuries, and consider how the rhetoric of Latin hagiography evolves as Western Christianity develops.
Class Hour: 11.00 am Wednesday and Friday.
Teaching: One seminar and one tutorial
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%
