GM3074 German Identity and the Jewish Question
Credits: 15  Semester: 1
Availability: 2011-12

Students will thereby come to understand what it means (and what it has meant) to be German (both gentile and Jew), and increase their knowledge of the historical roots of the debates and controversies at the heart of modern Germany. Students will explore and analyse a range of texts which are social and cultural, as well as literary in nature, and examine such topics as the rise of anti-Semitism and race theory in the nineteenth century, Jewish identification with German culture, the development of Zionism, and German-Jewish self-understanding after the Holocaust.

GM3080 Grammatical Rules and Lexical Exceptions in Modern German
Credits: 15  Semester: 1
Availability: 2010-11
Anti-requisites: LI3001
Description: Grammatical rules and lexical exceptions in modern German are considered against the background of Saussurean structuralism. Saussure said that a language is a system, and languages do indeed have rules, in their grammar. But most rules of grammar have a long list of unexplained exceptions - why? The view taken in this module is that unexplained exceptions indicate that the grammarians have got the rule wrong. We look at two rules of modern German to see how a close examination of their unexplained exceptions can point to a new and better rule: the passive and non-passivizable transitive verbs; and tense formation and strong verbs.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One lecture and one seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 2 Hour Examination = 60%

GM3081 Words and their functions in modern German
Credits: 15  Semester: 1
Availability: 2011-12
Description: This module focuses on the vocabulary in modern German (in contrast to GM3080, which focuses on grammar), on words and their categorization, structure and functions. We begin by looking at the functional (as opposed to structural) approach to language, which sees language as action and effects rather than as a static grammar + lexicon. We consider three approaches to the categorization of German vocabulary, i.e. the parts of speech: categorisation by syntax, by morphology, and by semantics. Two areas of language and politics are discussed: feminist linguistics, and Nuokespeak. Finally, we examine word formation in German, covering compounds, prefixes, suffixes, conversion, and morphological transparency versus opacity.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One lecture and one seminar.

GM3083 Hartmann von Aue: Knights, Lovers, Sinners, Saints
Credits: 15  Semester: 1

Description: This module examines the works of Hartmann von Aue, arguably one of the most important poets of the High Middle Ages. Looking at the Arthurian romances Erec and Iwein, as well as the shorter narrative poems Der Arme Heinrich and Gregorius, we will consider how Hartmann’s work embodies many prime characteristics of courtly literature while challenging them at same time. Topics covered will include gender roles, bodies, pain, madness, incest, holiness and religion, magic, time and space, the court and the individual, history of the world vs. history of salvation, and questions of genre as well as narrative perspective.
Class Hour: To be arranged.

GM3084 Future Shocks: Science and Technology in German Literature

Moving from early sci-fi, through Expressionism to more recent novels and poetry, students will examine literary discussions of Darwinism and biology, medicine and the human body, the ethical and social dimension of scientific research, robots and industrialization, and depictions of a post-apocalyptic humanity.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One lecture and one seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 40%, 2 Hour Examination = 60%

GM3085 Mediaeval Encounters with the Orient: Wolfram von Eschenbach’s Willehalm
Credits: 15 Semester: 1
Description: This module focuses on the epic poem Willehalm (c. 1210-1220), which depicts a momentous clash between Christianity and Islam while deviating remarkably from the ferocious anti-Islamic propaganda prevalent in contemporary medieval literature. Against the background of 13th-century crusade ideology and secular attitudes towards the East expressed in courtly and travel literature of the time, we examine constructions of Orient and Occident in Wolfram’s controversial text. Themes to be discussed are martial ethos and its critique, gender roles and their subversion, piety and religion, as well as their link to cultural and religious otherness. Finally, we investigate both Willehalm’s unique approach and its reception by comparing it to Rennewart and Arabel, the ‘sequel’ and ‘prequel’ that it subsequently inspired.
Class Hour: To be arranged.

GM4081 Modern Theatre
Credits: 15  Semester: 2
Availability: not available 2010-11

The GDR writer Heiner Müller as his literary heir and the Austrian Nobel Prizewinner Elfriede Jelinek complete the programme. Brecht aimed at establishing a theatre that turned performing and viewing into political processes. He and his successors – however – address audiences that wish to be entertained as well, and they develop new theatrical strategies to put their message across. The study of their plays will afford insight into the historical contexts of pre- and post-war Germany and Austria.

GM4086 Reason and Revolt: German Culture in the Enlightenment
Credits: 15  Semester: 2
Availability: 2011-12
Description: A time of religious crisis and political disunity, the eighteenth century witnessed an unprecedented explosion of creativity in all areas of German cultural life. In philosophy, the Age of Enlightenment gave rise to the optimistic faith in the power of human reason to abolish ignorance, superstition and tyranny. In the world of letters, a new national literature was finally emerging. But by the 1770s the rationalism of the Enlightenment was giving way to the passion and extravagance of the short-lived but influential Sturm und Drang movement. This module introduces students to the work of some of the key champions and critics of the Enlightenment — Kant, Lessing, Herder, and Goethe, amongst others — and through them explores the themes of progress and human perfectibility, cosmopolitanism and tolerance, religion, class, social rebellion and the cult of genius.

GM4087 Gods, Greece and the German Imagination
Credits: 15  Semester: 2
Availability: not available 2010-11
Description: Throughout the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, German thinkers and writers were fascinated with the culture, art and myths of ancient Greece. Why? This module explores the evolution of ‘philhellenism’ in Germany over a period of more than 100 years - from its origins in the work of JJ Winckelmann to the appropriation of the classical ideal in the literature and aesthetics of ‘Weimar Classicism’, from the poetry of Friedrich Hölderlin to the radical reevaluation of Greek culture undertaken by Friedrich Nietzsche - and sets these developments in their historical and ideological contexts. At issue will be the different meanings that the Hellenic world came to possess for these intellectuals, and how their idealisation of Greece and the Greeks profoundly influenced German ideas about art, modernity, politics and identity.

GM4089 Gods, Mermaids, Devils, Fortunes: How the German Novel Began
Credits: 15  Semester: 2
Availability: 2011-12
Description: This module investigates the early modern genre of the Prosaroman, a collection of fifteenth- and sixteenth-century prose narratives often regarded as precursors to the modern novel. We will analyse how novels such as Melusine, Fortunatus and Historia von D. Johann Fausten capture the tensions and conflicts of the transitional period of which they are a product. At the same time, we will consider later adaptations of these texts and their central motifs, e.g. by Fontane, Chamisso and Goethe. We will probe into the significance which the original prose novels held for the later texts, which appropriate them in a diverse manner shaped by the varied demands of Weimar classicism, romanticism and social realism, and will examine the presence of narrative strategies and continuities in approach which connect the early modern novel to its latter-day re-workings.

GM4090 Contemporary Turkish-German Text and Film
Credits: 15  Semester: 2
Description: This module focuses on Turkish-German writers from the 1990s onward. In a range of texts, as well as two key films, it explores the treatment of immigration and emigration against the socio-cultural background of the large influx of Turkish migrants into Germany in the 1960s and beyond. Through examination of critical theory on multicultural literature (exile, diaspora, minor literature), we consider how the works, frequently authored by non-native speakers, contribute to contemporary notions of Turkish/German identity and nationhood. While discussing how these examples of cultural hybridism shape and represent encounters between East and West, Christianity and Islam, secularism and religion, masculinities and femininities, we also investigate whether and to what extent they transcend the economies of such binaries.

GM4091 Generation, Genealogy and the Quest for Tradition: Contemporary German Family Narratives

Credits: 15
Semester: 2

Description: Since the turn of the millennium, the German book market has been awash with a wave of family narratives, both fictional and autobiographical, that sift through the long after-life of National Socialism from a transgenerational perspective. Engaging with questions of affiliation, lineage and tradition, the narrators of these stories relate how past events have been concealed and yet subliminally transmitted within postwar families. Studying the transition from a culture of remembrance towards a postmemorial culture, we will analyse the narratological strategies and thematic concerns across a range of texts that probe an unmastered inheritance within the domain of the family. We will also examine to what extent these narratives work towards an experiential historiography as an alternative to conventional modes of historical writing.

GM4092 East German Cinema

Credits: 15
Semester: 2

Description: The end of the GDR also saw the closure of the East German Film studios, DEFA, threatening its films with commercial oblivion. However, since reunification the many culturally and artistically significant films made under DEFA have increasingly attracted critical attention. This module will consider a number of these films spanning four decades in order to explore the way in which they navigate the political and censorial climate of the GDR and such issues as: East German cultural identity, the politics of the ordinary, the East German realist aesthetic, gender identities and feminism, the conflict between the individual and the state and the role of the artist in the GDR. We conclude the course by considering a film produced post reunification.

<td>It is no exaggeration to say that, for a variety of reasons, Dante Alighieri is the single most important figure in the history of Italian literature. This module completes the study of Dante by looking at his work before and after the Inferno. Before the Inferno, Dante was best known as the author of the Vita nuova. This is our first text for study. Less read and more difficult, according to Dante himself, the Paradiso concludes the Commedia and is our other text for study. To complete our examination of Dante's ideas, reference will also be made to the Convivio, the Monarchia, and the De vulgari eloquentia, as well as to the Purgatorio and Inferno.</td>

Linguistics (LI) Modules
LI3001 General Linguistics I: The Method of Lexical Exceptions
Credits: 15  Semester: 1
Prerequisite: LI2002, or admission to an Honours degree in any subject other than Linguistics
Anti-requisites: GM3080
Description: Grammatical rules and lexical exceptions are considered against the background of Saussurean structuralism. Saussure said that a language is a system, and languages do indeed have rules, in their grammar. But most rules of grammar have a long list of unexplained exceptions - why? The view taken in this module is that unexplained exceptions indicate that the grammarians have got the rule wrong. We look at two grammatical rules to see how a close examination of their unexplained exceptions can point to a new and better rule: the passive and non-passivizable transitive verbs; and tense formation and strong verbs. The main language of illustration is English, with some mention of German, Russian, French, and other languages; students are encouraged to bring their own languages, either which they are studying or which they have as a native language, into the discussion. The module is of interest and is accessible to, not just linguists, but philosophers, anthropologists, psychologists, literature students, and other disciplines.
Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One-and-a-half hours.
