This module introduces key movements and moments in film history such as early cinema; German Expressionism; Soviet montage; Surrealism; Classical Hollywood; Italian Neorealism; or classical Japanese cinema. Consideration will be given to the development of international film industries and movements. We will also examine the process of writing and researching film history and the status of film as an historical artefact. We will look at the kinds of cultural, social and/or political knowledges that can we extract from films of the past, and the ways in which the choices we make in the construction of film histories affect the way in which the cinematic past is understood.

Programme module type: Compulsory for Film Studies

Planned timetable: 3.00 pm Tue and Fri, Wed evening (screening)

This module continues the exploration of issues of film history and historiography which began in FM1002. It introduces students to the most important cinematic developments of the second part of the twentieth century (such as, among others, Nouvelle Vague, New German cinema, Brazilian Cinema Novo, New Hollywood, American Indies, Chinese and African cinemas, New Iranian cinema) and provides exposure to the work of some of the most important filmmakers of the world. The exploration of film history is put in the context of the forces that shape its transnational networks of production and distribution. The module aims to provide proper understanding of the complex topo-temporal dynamics of world cinemas in a global context.

Planned timetable: 3.00 pm Tue and Fri, Wed evening (screening)

This module introduces a range of approaches to cinema, their relationship to culture and the politics of entertainment. The changing historical attitudes towards cinema are examined against the background of influential popular cinematic texts. The first group of lectures examines the early answers to the question "what is cinema?" and investigates those attempts at theorising cinema that preceded the emergence of film studies as a canonised subject. In the second part of the module, the focus is on the consolidation of the field in the 1970s, revealing how newly emerged cultural concerns and issues of class, race, gender, and nationality influenced the new interpretation of cinema. The module concludes by examining how 'Screen theory' both rejuvenated the field and necessitated its future rethinking.

Planned timetable: 3.00 pm Tutorials: Tue, Thu and Fri.

This module is designed for students who have already studied an instrument or singing and would like to continue making music at high level while at university. It supports students in improving their performance abilities while developing an understanding of the historical, analytical and aesthetic ideas related to musical performance. The module also offers the chance to study composition and to perform as part of an ensemble. Students are required to present a short recital for examination and to complete related written work.

Programme module type: Available to any degree programme.

Pre-requisite(s): Grade 8 performance certificate or an audition with the module co-ordinator

Required for: MU2001

Learning and teaching methods and delivery:

- Weekly contact: 3 tutorials.

MU1005 Reading Opera: Texts, Libretti and Music from Purcell to Stravinsky

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SCOTCAT Credits:</th>
<th>20</th>
<th>SCQF Level: 7</th>
<th>Semester:</th>
<th>2</th>
</tr>

Planned timetable: 10.00 am - Lectures Mon and Thu, Viewing Sessions Tue and Wed.

This module examines operas based on literary works from a variety of different nations (France, England, Russia, Germany, USA, Ancient Rome) that are significant in their own right. Our work will focus on the transformations of meaning and structure that take place as text is turned into libretto, and as libretto is set to music. The module will shed light on the relationship between music and text, and on the function that music plays in drama. Composers to be examined may include some or all of the following: Purcell, Bizet, Tchaikovsky, Massenet, Verdi, Puccini, Debussy, Berg and Stravinsky. No prior knowledge of musical notation is necessary to take this module. It is intended to be of particular interest to students of English literature and European modern languages, but is open to all with an interest in the link between music and drama.

Programme module type: Available to any degree programme.

Learning and teaching methods and delivery:

- Weekly contact: 2 lectures, 2 screenings and 1 tutorial.

This is a practical module offering students the opportunity to work in small groups in the Music Centre's studio to create music from electronic sources. Accompanying lectures and seminars examine the history of electronic music, amplified music and computer music and look at works by significant composers and innovators who have worked in these genres, from Stockhausen to Jimi Hendrix. The module also offers tuition in music software packages such as Sibelius, Logic and Ableton Live. No prior experience in electronic music is necessary in order to take the module, but some knowledge of music notation or music theory would be advantageous.

What am I, and what is reality? Am I part of the scientific, law-governed material world? If so, can I really act freely? How could a material thing be conscious? Am I the same person as I was 10 years ago? What, fundamentally, are material things and their properties? This module will enable students to understand and begin to answer such fundamental philosophical questions, and to gain valuable skills in reasoning and abstract thought.

What should we believe? How should we think? This module provides an introduction to informal and formal modes of reasoning, and to philosophical ideas about the differences between good and bad arguments. We will discuss induction and deduction, justification and knowledge, and will study elementary features of propositional and predicate logic. The module is an essential foundation for further study in philosophy, and teaches skills that are central to many other academic disciplines.

This module provides an accessible and comprehensive introduction to the philosophical significance of the most pressing moral problems of today, e.g. euthanasia, abortion, world poverty and the moral status of animals and the environment; as well as a guide to the rival theoretical approaches used to reflect upon these issues: consequentialism, Kantian ethics, virtue theories, contract-based ethics and moral scepticism. Students will be given the opportunity to study the three 'great books' that inspire and divide moral philosophers to the present day: Aristotle's Nicomachean Ethics, Immanuel Kant's Groundwork for the Metaphysics of Morals and J.S. Mill's Utilitarianism.

We appeal to reasons both in explaining why people behave as they do and in explaining why they ought to behave in some way. But what sort of thing is a reason? How does it relate to our desires and preferences? What does it mean to say that a particular action is rational? When should an action be considered free or voluntary? Why do we fail to act rationally, and act contrary to what we judge to be right? And what are the conditions that undermine responsibility for the way we act? This module provides a critical introduction to these and other questions about the nature of practical rationality.
