This module introduces students to one of the strangest works of mediaeval literature, Beowulf. The hero’s struggles against monsters, and the text’s depiction of pagan aristocracies and tribal warfare will be studied in close readings and thematic study against the backdrop of Anglo-Saxon literary history and poetic conventions. Key aspects studied will include monstrosity, warfare, paganism, leadership, poetic composition, early mediaeval manuscript production, and the usage of electronic tools. The module will also range widely amongst related North Sea literature (Old English poetry, Old Norse sagas, mediaeval Latin, and modern folklore). Beowulf will be read in a glossed edition and in the original; supporting material will be read in translation. Some prior experience with reading Old English (e.g. through EN2003) is useful, but not necessarily required. (Group A)

Planned timetable: 2.00 pm Tue and 10.00 am Fri

This module is based on the close study of (typically) five Victorian novels. It will concentrate on two related thematic issues: the sense of social and historical change, and the search for coherence and stability in the self. Students will examine the way the novel both reflected and contributed to contemporary debate on such topics as the re-emergence of feminist argument, urbanisation, and evolutionary theory. Attention will also be given to the formal inventiveness of the Victorian novel, in particular the use of non-realist elements, and the different roles given to the narrators. (Group C)

Planned timetable: 11.00 am Thu and 11.00 am Fri

An introduction to the history of ecology-related literature from the transcendentalists to the present, including the nature writing tradition, ecocriticism and writing as ecology. Beginning with Emerson and Thoreau, we examine how a transcendentalist philosophy of nature influenced English-language works in the UK and USA; we also address a number of schools or trends, including feminist, regional, naturalist, Native American and other indigenous thinking, as well as the implications of ecocritical writing for a wider field, including other literary-critical approaches, economics and history. This module will survey a representative sample of modernist fiction and poetry, providing an opportunity for the in-depth study of key conceptual shifts and formal innovations in modernist literature. Thematically, it will take as its central focus the question of how the modernist desire to break with the past and ‘make it new’ existed alongside an on-going interest in tradition and the past. We will consider topics such as Imagism and classicism; modernist uses of myth; the modernist pastoral; modernism and memory; exile and imagined return; and the anticipatory nostalgia of the 1930s. A diverse and contested field, postcolonialism explores a world transformed by European exploration, exploitation and empire-building. This course examines literary representations of this world and will introduce students to a range of key texts, critical debates and theoretical concepts in postcolonial studies. Focusing, in particular (but not exclusively), on the legacies of the British empire, we will explore the work of writers from across Africa, the Caribbean, India and Britain in order to question the ways in which postcolonial literature and theory challenges our understanding of race, class, gender, language and the individual. How has the history of empire shaped the world in which we live? In what ways have writers responded to the pressures to both commemorate the colonial past and move beyond it? And, what role can literature play in the attempt to challenge the historical and political injustices of our postcolonial world? (Group E)

EN3214 The Country and the City in Scottish Literature

SCOTCAT Credits: 30
SCQF Level: 9
Semester: 2

Planned timetable: 10.00 am - 11.00 am Mon and 10.00 am - 11.00 am Wed

What and where is Scotland? How have the cities and the countryside of Scotland been created over the last 200 years? And what are the internal and external borders of Scottish literature – psychologically, geographically and formally? By exploring Scottish novels – and poetry – from the early 19th century to the present day we examine the literary construction and deconstruction of Scotland through depictions of its rural and urban spaces. In particular, we analyse dystopian and utopian fantasies, green and gothic tendencies, and nostalgia both for the lost idyllic countryside and for gritty, urban ‘reality’, to ask if Scotland as a literary construction makes sense – and if it needs to. ### EN4312 Authorising English: Society, Gender and Religion in Late Mediaeval English Literature

SCQF Level: 10
Semester: 1

Planned timetable: 3.00 pm and 4.00 pm Mon

The module examines the literature composed in England during the later Middle Ages with an emphasis on the years around 1400 - a period in which ideas of 'English literature' and the 'English language' can be seen under construction. The module offers an introduction to the genres of Middle English literature (particularly lyric poetry, romance and mystical writing). And it examines the interrelationship between textual practice and the cultural processes that generated imaginative writing. Special attention will be paid to the preoccupation of authors with a world which they saw as moving towards moral, political and religious complexity and uncertainty. Also to be explored will be the implication in turbulent ideological debate of the use of English in texts many of which are written for laypeople and women (Group A)

Planned timetable: 11.00 am Tue and 12.00 noon Thu

This module explores the idea of 'courtly literature' through detailed study of some of the most influential poems in Middle English. Alongside Chaucer's Troilus and Criseyde, students might read works such as Gower's Confessio Amantis, Sir Gawain and the Green Knight or The Floure and the Leafe. The aim of the module is to study fewer, larger texts in greater depth, allowing students to get to grips with the depth and complexity of these canonical works and the literary-critical issues they raise. A central critical issue to be explored is the heated modern debate over the notion of 'courtly love'. (Group A)

Programme module type: Group A Optional for English

Pre-requisite(s): EN2003, EN2004 (for St Andrews students - may be waived for JSA students).

During the English Renaissance it was widely understood that literature ought to 'instruct by pleasing'. This module is concerned with those writers and texts that seem to ignore this imperative. Why, we will ask, do writers from John Donne to Alexander Pope go out of their way to challenge or baffle or confuse or overwhelm their readers? What are the forms, conditions, and uses of literary complexity? This module might alternatively be called 'How To Read Hard Renaissance Texts.' Likely authors studied will include Donne, Marvell, Cavendish, Milton, Dryden, Swift, Pope. (Group B)

This module explores poetry, prose and drama from the reign of Henry VIII through to the early years of Elizabeth I's rule. It will examine the remodelling of literary forms in a period of religious and political 'reformation', combining broad cultural and historical perspectives with in-depth textual analysis. Key texts include: More's Utopia; the poetry of Wyatt, Surrey and Skelton; early sixteenth-century religious verse; and the allegorical drama Everyman. Students will have the opportunity to write on the reception of this period in film, novels, the visual arts, etc. (Group B)

Planned timetable: 2.00 pm Tue and 2.00 pm Thu

The Enlightenment is a contested historical category, with arguments about literature and philosophy contributing to the definition of what enlightens a human subject. As a result of reading major texts of poetry, fiction and non-fiction from the Eighteenth Century, students on this module will be encouraged to explore the ways in which literature constructs relationships between the rational, emotional, spiritual and physical aspects of human life. They will also be invited to ask how the physical, emotional and spiritual impinge upon rational accounts of enlightenment, and will study the way in which literary texts such as Rochester’s poems, Pope’s Essay on Man, and Sterne’s Tristram Shandy complicate accounts of the age of reason given from the perspective of the history of ideas. This module explores the richness and diversity of poetry written and/or published in the period 1837-1901. Covering a range of major works, it examines the new demands made of poetry in this era, and the different ways in which poets respond to the challenge of skepticism and disagreement about poetry’s place in an industrialised society. The structure of the module is both chronological and thematic, addressing issues such as gender, class, religion, and nation in relation to Victorian poetry. Throughout, the module uses the background of visual art - including poetry book illustration, Victorian paintings based on subjects from Victorian poetry, and artworks commemorated in Victorian poems - to highlight issues regarding poetry’s status, aims, and appearance in the period. Looking at the art of poetry in relation to visual art, it asks how Victorian poetry aligns itself with broader aesthetic debates about form, function, and representation. (Group C)

EN4414 Thomas Hardy

SCOTCAT Credits: 30 | SCQF Level 10 | Semester: 2

Planned timetable: 10.00 am Tue and 10.00 am Thu

This module is based on the close study of a selection of the prose fiction, poetry and autobiographical writings of Thomas Hardy. Students will examine Hardy's position as a regional writer, his relation to 'realism', and his representation of women and sexuality; the features, thematic and formal, which have made him a major influence on twentieth-century poetry; and the relevance of (auto)biographical and historical questions to the study of his work. The module will introduce students to a range of issues in social, literary and intellectual history, and to the use and evaluation of some recent developments in critical theory. (Group E)

Planned timetable:
11.00 am - 1.00 pm Tue, 12 noon Thu

This module focuses on the history of thinking about poetic language, primarily in English language traditions. Its core will be the study of twentieth- and twenty first century theories of poetic language, but it will draw on theoretical and literary texts from the fourteenth century onwards. Poetic language is a contested topic in various established and emerging disciplines: literary linguistics, post-structuralist theory, philosophy of language, cognitive poetics, practice-led research. This module will draw together the study of poetic language from these various perspectives, and enable students to apply their theoretical studies to a wide range of poetic texts, and to appreciate how those texts complicate theoretical work. The module will help to bridge the gaps between different ways of studying poetry in the university context—technical, scholarly, creative. (Group E)

3.00 - 5.00 pm Thu

This module will use material culture studies as a lens through which to consider the continuities and ruptures between Victorian and modernist attitudes towards material culture and the ways in which attitudes towards the material informed the stylistic choices of fiction writers in these periods. Victorian novelists typically filled their works with detailed descriptions of physical environments and objects in order to create the ‘solidity of specification’ characteristic of realist fiction; modernist writers rejected this method as ‘materialist’ and sought alternatives to the solidity of the triple-decker novels of the Victorians. However, this module will question such easy distinctions and consider both differences and continuities between Victorian and modernist writers’ fascination with and suspicion of things. Authors studied may include Elizabeth Gaskell, Charles Dickens, Arthur Conan Doyle, E M Forster, and Virginia Woolf. (Group E)

In an era of globalisation who ‘speaks’ the nation-state? How do communities negotiate their borders? Who ‘belongs’ and who decides? This module explores the changing nature of the nation-state and cultural expressions of belonging in the wake of decolonisation, independence, revolution and globalisation. Exploring a diverse range of texts drawn from across the globe, we will question the significance of ‘world literature’ and its relation to postcolonialism, ‘cosmopolitanism’ and national literatures. From the Haitian Revolution, independence movements, the Biafran war, Trujillo’s Dominican dictatorship and the ‘parsley massacre’ to tourism and globalisation, this course is an opportunity to reflect on the pressures facing our global imagined communities in the late twentieth and twenty-first centuries.

How exclusive a club is modernism? Did Scottish and Irish cultural nationalism inform and trouble ‘modernist’ writing? And what role did writers from the ‘Celtic fringe’ of the British archipelago play in reinvigorating and reconfiguring the literary canon in the period between 1914 and 1939? By analysing a diverse range of texts from Scottish, Irish and (Anglo-)Welsh writers – from formal as well as socio-political perspectives – we will explore alternative views of the Modernist period: in particular we will examine the relationship between the Irish Literary Revival and the Scottish Renaissance, and between the Celtic periphery and the metropolitan centre, and also the ways the writers studied turned the English language, and its hierarchies and traditions, back on itself. In this module we shall be looking at literary and cinematic representations of different instances of civil war and partition – the Irish Civil War (1922-1923), the Spanish Civil War (1936-1939), the conflict around the Indian/Pakistani partition (1947), the conflict between Israel and Palestine (1948-present), the Nigerian Civil War/Biafran War (1967-1970) and the Sri Lankan Civil War (1983-2009). In the process, we will focus on issues such as gender, nationhood, politics of memory and commemoration, and the aesthetics of representing violence. We will examine the politics of definition of civil wars and think about civil wars as a consequence of colonialism and post-colonial nation-building. What are the specific issues that are associated with civil war? Is there a particular kind of literature that comes out of civil wars? What role does literature play in our perceptions of civil war? How might it help or hinder post-civil war reconciliation?

Why is iambic pentameter still so popular? Why are sonnets the shape they are? What makes poetry memorable? What do we mean by a poem’s ‘music’? This module will explain what makes poetic speech and form distinct, and examine the relationship between the forms we read on the page, and the real forces that shape the poem. The module will focus on examples from Anglo-Saxon poetry to the present day, and will draw on both traditional methods of analysis and recent linguistic theory to explain how the poem works.
