Workshop
‘How Do International Organisations Respond to Terrorism:
Global and Regional Responses’
University of St Andrews, 3 November 2016

Organisers: Handa CSTPV, Centre for Global Constitutionalism, University of St Andrews
Contact: Dr Bernhard Blumenau, bb57@st-andrews.ac.uk
Time: 3rd November, 9:45 – 19:00
Location: Workshop: Parliament Hall
Roundtable: Senate Room (upstairs from Parliament Hall)

Scope
This workshop will address the role that global and regional institutions have been playing in antiterrorism both at present and in the past. In order to do so comprehensively, the workshop will assess not only current issues in international antiterrorism efforts but also look at the genesis of multilateral antiterrorism measures and regimes negotiated within the framework of international organisations (IOs). The objective is two-fold: First to see and analyse antiterrorism efforts put in place by international global and regional organisations and to assess the question of agency within these processes. Second, it will be investigated to what extent the implementation of these efforts both internationally and domestically posed problems of efficiency or caused conflicts of legal orders. International organisations are thus seen both as actors in their own rights as well as fora where states (and possibly other stakeholders) meet and negotiate relevant actions. There will be a set of core questions to be addressed (but the workshop will not be limited only to them):

• What international antiterrorism efforts have been put in place by what IOs and for which reasons?
• What were the driving/halting forces and motives behind these efforts?
• How were these efforts implemented?
• What conflicts arose with other national or international policies and legal concepts (sovereignty and human rights, for instance)?
• In which cases did multilateral cooperation work and why did it not in others?
• What are the prospects for future international antiterrorism efforts, what roles can IOs play, and what lessons can be learnt from the past?

The panels will be open to the public.

Supported by: University of St Andrews, School of IR, Handa Centre for the Study of Terrorism and Political Violence (CSTPV), Centre for Global Constitutionalism, Pierre du Bois Foundation for Current History
‘How Do International Organisations Respond to Terrorism: Global and Regional Responses’
University of St Andrews, 3 November 2016

Schedule 3 November 2016

9:45 - 10:15 Registration and coffees

10:15 - 10:30 Welcome and Opening remarks
Dr Timothy Wilson, Director of CSTPV/University of St Andrews
Dr Bernhard Blumenau, CSTPV/University of St Andrews

10:30 - 12:00
Panel I Global

Dr Alanna O’Malley, University of Leiden, ‘A humanitarian intervention or a rebel suppression? The United Nations and the Simba Rebellion in the Congo, 1964’

Dr Bernhard Blumenau, CSTPV/University of St Andrews, ‘When it all began: The ICAO and anti-hijacking efforts in the 1960s and 1970s’

Dr John Karlsrud, NUPI Oslo, ‘UN peacekeeping and anti-terrorism: The MINUSMA mission in Mali’

Chair: Dr Mateja Peter, University of St Andrews

12:00 - 14:00 Lunch (for participants)

14:00 - 15:30
Panel II Regional

Dr Peter Lehr, CSTPV/University of St Andrews, ‘ASEAN and counter-terrorism: Still less than meets the eye?’

Dr Javier Argomaniz, CSTPV/University of St Andrews, ‘EU and radicalisation’

Dr Joris Larik, University of Leiden, ‘In the shadow of Kadi: Developments in the UN/EU and security-due process nexus’

Chair: Dr Adam Bower, University of St Andrews

15:30 - 15:45 Concluding comments

15:45 - 17:30 Break with refreshments
‘How Do International Organisations Respond to Terrorism: Global and Regional Responses’
University of St Andrews, 3 November 2016

17:30-19:00
Roundtable with

Catherine Stihler, MEP and
Claude Moraes, MEP, Chairman of the European Parliament Committee on Civil Liberties, Justice and Home Affairs

‘The EU and terrorism: responses and challenges’

Chair: Professor Anthony Lang, University of St Andrews
(NB: The roundtable will take place at Senate Room, which is upstairs from Parliament Hall)