Teaching Experience

Masters Level Current Issues in Philosophy (Mind and Language) (required core module, introducing a key current issue in philosophy of mind and philosophy of language); Formal Approaches to Natural Language (an introduction to formal semantics)

Honours (Third and Fourth Year) Animals, Minds, and Language; Metaphysics; Philosophy of Language; Reading Philosophy (required core module for third year students, focusing on skills related to reading, writing, oral presentations)

Sub-honours (First and Second Year) Mind and Reality (first-year introduction to philosophy of mind and metaphysics); Reasoning and Knowledge (first-year introduction to logic and epistemology); Metaphysics and Science (second-year introduction to philosophy of science)

Other teaching

Module development I have developed modules at Honours level (Animals, Minds, and Language, which includes novel interdisciplinary elements (psychology, biology), as well as group work and heavy use of Moodle forums and blogs) and at MLitt level (Formal Approaches to Natural Language (developed with Ephraim Glick), which also includes interdisciplinary elements, as similar courses are often taught in linguistics departments).

- Fall 2014 Member, Curriculum Review Working Groups for Language and Epistemology, and Mind and Metaphysics
- Summer 2014, Summer 2017 Supervisor, Undergraduate Research Internship Programme, 2014: Jura Ivankovic (topic: Are Zombies Possible?); 2017: Jude Bernard (topic: Implicit Bias)
- 2010-present Supervisor for many MLitt and Honours dissertations in philosophy of mind, philosophy of language, and metaphysics

Research Student Supervision and Examination

- Current PhD Students • Sara Vikesdal (topic: Mental files) (first supervisor in St Andrews, degree is joint with University of Oslo)
